If the Dead Could Hear Standards Are Important As the Pig Sees Worse Than Beavers

IF THE DEAD could hear Woodrow Wilson would have heard yesterday these words of the 39th Psalm, read by Bishop Freeman at his burial:

And now, Lord, what is my hope; truly my hope is even in Thee.

Our acts live as long as the earth lives. But how dead we are individually, when the heart stops beating.

"Man walketh in a vain shadow and disquieteth himself in vain."

YOU COME to the end of a book, read the word Finis, and know all that the book has to say. It is not so with the life of an active man. His last day comes, yet for him you cannot write Finis, not after a year, or the next; perhaps not for a thousand years.

Woodrow Wilson, who held in his hand more material power than any individual has ever held on this earth, went back into the ground yesterday. But how long the effects of his active life will be felt on this planet no man can say.

ONE GREAT THING is to establish the right standards, individually and nationally. From Peking comes news of a young Chinese woman, who, with her needle, supported her mother-in-law and her daughter, five years old. The mother-in-law died, the daughter-in-law, impelled by Chinese traditions of duty, sold her own child for $30 to pay for the mother-in-law's funeral. In China they call that admirable. Not so here. It's a question of standards.

THE BRAIN alone counts and the spirit that lives in it. Doctors will plant the entire eye of a pig in the empty socket of Alfred Lemanowitz. The nerve that carries to the brain pictures of the outside world is still alive in the blind man's head, and doctors hope that he will be able to see with the pig's eye. If so, he will see, as men see, the beauty of sun and flowers, the beauty in kind faces—many things that no pig ever saw. There are human beings here and in Europe that have two perfectly good eyes and yet, see just about what the average pig sees.

"Two men looked out from behind their bars:
One saw the mud, the other saw the stars."

THIS CONSERVATIVE nation might learn something from the Labor party in England. They are actually going to use public money to provide living quarters for those that haven't any. Here we would call it "hideous paternalism" if public funds were spent to provide homes for the public. To pack them ten in a room, or put them out on the sidewalks, in big cities, seems to us eminently "respectable and democratic." But, to build houses with public money? That's worse than beavers, that help each other, building.

HEALTH OFFICERS in Montana want permission to destroy all mountain goats, because they carry, more than any others, the "ticks" by which human beings are infected with the deadly spotted fever germ.

TWO SHOT IN FIGHT IN NEWTON HOME

REFUSE TO LET FALL TESTIFY

Oil Probers Fear Contempt Proceedings Will Give Accused Whip Hand

Washington, Feb. 7.—E. L. Doheny, the California oil operator, has notified the Senate Oil Committee that instead of the $23,000 he recently reimbursed his interests had paid William G. McAdoo's law firm, the amount actually paid so far is $150,000, including an annual fee of $25,000 to Mr. McAdoo himself.

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior and a central figure in the oil lease scandal, today was released from further appearances before the Senate Public Committee to testify concerning the turning over of naval reserves in Wyoming and California to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny.

The committee decided in executive session that if Fall was compelled to testify with respect to loans from Sinclair and Doheny, such testimony might operate to gain immunity for him in the event of criminal action in connection with the recovery of oil lands of the government.

COMMITTEE RECANTS.

When called before the committee last week, Fall declined to answer questions, on the ground his testimony might tend to incriminate him, and because the committee had no authority to continue the oil investigation during the Sixty-Eighth Congress.

The committee had planned to ask the Senate for formal authority to go ahead with the inquiry, and, in anticipation of favorable action on this request, a new subpoena had been issued for Fall, who is now in Washington at the home of Colonel J. W. Zevely, partner of Sinclair.

It was the opinion of Chairman

DISMISSES JURY IN RUM CASE

Failed in Duty, Judge Stone Says, After Verdict of Acquittal Is Brought In

A jury was summarily dismissed in Superior Court today after returning a verdict of not guilty in a liquor case.

"You have failed to perform your duty and are discharged from further service," said Judge Stone.

It brought to a head, it was said in the corridors, trouble various courts have had for a week or more to get proper verdicts in cases involving liquor.

Today's case concerned Dennis A. Scannell of Otis street, Cambridge, accused of operating an automobile while intoxicated.

The dismissed jurors were: Harry M. Frank, foreman, No. 53 Centennial avenue, Revere; Joseph M. Duffy, No. 559 East Sixth street, South Boston; George H. Gilbert, No. 9 Coral avenue, Winthrop; John J. McLaughlin, No. 11 Auburn street, West End; Edward C. McNaught, No. 144 Crescent avenue, Revere; James T. McQuade, No. 154 Winthrop street, Roxbury; Henry S. O'Gorman, No. 1 Marion terrace, West Roxbury; Joseph T. Ryan, No. 720 East Fourth street, South Boston; Charles T. Sheehan, No. 532 East Broadway, South Boston; Albert R. Clark, No. 9 Catawba street, Dorchester; Charles G. Bliss, No. 41 Rutland square, South End, and George A. Bishop, No. 211 West Eighth street, South Boston.

They had served since Monday.

JURY DISAGREES IN AUTO FRAUD CASE

Salem, Feb. 7.—A jury in Superior Court reported a disagreement today in the case of Dr. Thomas W. Barry of Lynn, who was tried jointly with Thomas Horne and Andrew Moore on charges of conspiring to defraud an insurance company.

Horne testified that Barry told him to take his automobile. Dr. Barry denied it, said the car was stolen and that he had naturally collected on his insurance policy.

JUDGE INJURED IN FALL DOWNSTAIRS

Brookfield, Feb. 7.—Judge Henry F. Cottle, 67 years old, for 17 years justice of the district court in East Brookfield, fell down a flight of stairs in his home today, fractured two ribs, punctured a lung and received numerous bruises. While his condition is critical it is said he probably will recover.

2 LYNN WOMEN SEEK TO END OWN LIVES

The names of two Lynn women are on the danger list at Lynn Hospital today as the result of what is believed to be attempts at suicide.

The first woman, found in a serious condition, was Mrs. Marion Huff, 23, wife of Frederick Huff of No. 12 West Baltimore street. She was found unconscious after having swallowed the contents of a bottle of poison.

Mrs. Huff left a note saying she wanted to die, as she had been sick for a long time. Her husband told police, however, that they had had a disagreement early in the day which may have led her to take such a step. Slight hope is held for her recovery.

Mrs. Mary Brogaw, aged fifty, of No. 101 Union street, was found unconscious in bed by her landlady, Mrs. Edna Maynard.

Mrs. Maynard smelled gas and traced it to Mrs. Brogaw's room. The police believe suicide was attempted.

Mrs. Brogaw was a shoe worker. Some of her co-workers said she had complained of being ill for the last few days.

Defending Japan's attitude toward the question as "conciliatory and well meaning," the Minister expresses readiness to discuss anew the problem of restrictions and exclusion.

BROKER AND STRANGER IN DUEL

Intruder, Dying With Three Bullets in Body, May Be Haverhill Man

Mystery surrounds a pistol duel today at the home of Lewis P. Curtis, broker and clubman of Newton.

At the St. Elizabeth Hospital an unidentified man, with four bullet holes in his body, hovers between life and death.

In the Newton hospital is Curtis, suffering from a bullet wound in his arm and body.

The stranger, who is believed to be Roy G. Vance, a carpenter, of Haverhill, refused to make any statements to the police and would not even tell his name.

A watch, found on his person, has been identified as part of the loot seized by a thief who robbed the home of John H. Carroll, No. 26 Royal street, Watertown, last month.

At the Curtis home the only explanation for the shooting given is that a maid found a strange man asleep on a couch in the sun-parlor of the home. When she told Curtis he took an automatic revolver and walked to the sun-porch.

In an instant the duel was on and Curtis, who is a crack shot, put two bullets in the stranger's abdomen, one in the arm and another in the chest.

CURTIS HIT IN ARM.

The stranger returned the fire and one bullet struck Curtis' arm and then went into his body. His condition is not serious.

The shooting took place about 7:30 a. m., about half an hour later police at the Brighton station received a call from a train started at the Lake street transfer station, telling them a man who was shot was a passenger on a Newton-Brighton car.

The police met the car at the corner of Warren and Commonwealth avenue and found the stranger, barely conscious, slumped in a seat.

The man wore a tuxedo suit, a brown overcoat, but did not have shoes or hat.

The man was rushed to St. Elizabeth's.

SENATE PLUNGED INTO PARTISAN BATTLE

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—The Senate was thrown into partisan political debate on the oil leasing scandals today when Senator Walsh read an editorial attacking Secretary of the Interior Fall and criticizing President Coolidge. This followed the adoption of the Senate action to receive the Kirkland resolution to investigate the Standard Oil Company of California. The Senate also adopted another resolution re-affirming the authority of its oil committee to proceed with its investigation. Jurisdiction has been challenged by Fall.

both's Hospital. On the way he call d constantly for his mother, but seemed unable to tell his name.

The hospital physicians said the man had only a few hours to live.

The contents of the man's pockets revealed one of the queer angles of the case. There were only three cents in cash, but a heavy, old-fashioned silver watch gave the police an important clew.

This watch was stolen from the home of John H. Carroll of No. 26 Royal street, Watertown, on the night of January 22.

The Carroll home was entered by a sneak thief and the watch, together with a considerable quantity of jewelry, was taken. The watch had been the property of Mr Carroll's brother, John F. Carroll who is dead. An inscription in the back of the watch case made identification possible

Both at the Curtis home and at the Newton police station, every effort was made to keep the shooting quiet. Curtis refused to make any statement, as did his father Thomas P. Curtis of Newton Highlands. The elder Curtis and his son are both associated with the firm of Deering Milliken & Co., wool dealers.

CURTIS A CRACK SHOT.

The shooting brought to light the fact that Curtis has a police record, in which the use of firearms has figured prominently. He has long been regarded as one of the most expert shots in this section of the country. In 1913 he was arrested after he attempted to shoot his parents, and at that time he was sent to a private asylum, but was released after three weeks.

On another occasion he was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction for shooting out street lights in Newton, but sentence was suspended when he paid for the broken lights.

Following the war, Curtis was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury for making false returns on his income tax returns. He was also charged with making false statements to avoid the draft.

Curtis' police record includes:

May 1, 1912—Fined $20 on a charge of recklessly driving an automobile.

May 2, 1913—Attempted to shoot his father and mother and was locked up in the Newton police station.

March 3, 1913—Was sent to a private asylum by his family, but was released after three weeks.

October 3, 1913—Was fined $15 in Newton court for speeding.

December 19, 1913—Appeared in Newton Court for shooting and breaking street lights. Was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction but sentence was suspended after he agreed to indemnify the Edison Company for damages amounting to $150.

December 21, 1913—Was fined $10 in Dedham Court for pulling false fire alarm in Wellesley.

July 13, 1915—Auto license suspended by highway commissioner after he run down and seriously injured a girl in Hudson.

October 5, 1915—Fined $5 in Waltham Court for driving an automobile without a license.

According to the Brighton police, they took the stranger from the trolley car as the result of a "tip" given the trolley starter at the Lake street station by a woman.

The woman followed the bleeding stranger into the station and told the starter the man was involved in a shooting and that the police should be notified. The starter directed that the car make no stops until it reached the corner of Warren street and Commonwealth avenue, where the police patrol was waiting.

HAD WOMAN'S ADDRESS.

In the pocket of the stranger was found a slip of paper bearing the name "Elizabeth M. Green," and an address, "Long Island Hospital."

Miss Green, who is a student nurse at Long Island Hospital, said today she never heard of Vance and could not remember any such man ever having been at the hospital.

The weapon the stranger used in returning the fire of Curtis was a 32-calibre revolver. The weapon Curtis used was a 38-calibre automatic.

According to the maid at the Curtis home, the stranger, after being shot, staggered from the house directly to the trolley, mumbling something about wanting to get to Boston.

For later developments in this case see later editions of the American.

20 WOMEN ARE TAKEN OVER LADDERS

Two Alarms Are Sounded for Blaze in Allston Block; Firemen Heroes

Firemen of Ladder Company 14, Harvard avenue, Allston, distinguished themselves today when they carried a score of women to safety from the burning twenty suite apartment house at No. 132 Warren street, Allston.

Two alarms were sounded for a fire of undetermined origin in the four-story yellow-brick structure, which is situated at the corner of Allston street and is owned by John Leplante, Jr. The owner occupies one of the suites.

Some of the women tenants became hysterical and others fainted. The motor tractor of Ladder Company 26, Longwood and Brookline avenues, burst in flames on the way to the fire and was put out of commission.

The fire appeared to have originated in the cellar and at about the centre of the building. One of the women tenants was the first to discover it. The racket she made trying to open a frost-fastened window attracted the attention of Donald H. Farnham of No. 197, who rushed to the street and pulled in an alarm.

While 100 persons were driven upon the street and into nearby homes, and while the rescue work of the laddermen was picturesque and thrilling, the monetary loss it was said would not exceed $10,000.

Mrs. Warren Bratner, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, Mrs. Griffin, Mrs. H. L. MacDonald and her seven-months-old daughter Jacqueline, Miss Alice Cyr, Miss Adelaide York and Miss Ada Glazer were among those brought down the ladders. When the firemen arrived, women living on the 3rd and 4th floors were preparing to leap from fire-escape balconies overlooking the courtyard. The firemen, reassuring them, hastily hoisted extension ladders.

FALL RELEASED

Lenroot, Senator Walsh and other committee members that no steps should be taken by the Senate which would hamper the legal proceedings to be made by special attorneys, under the direction of President Coolidge, to recover the oil lands. This decision led to the vacating of the Fall subpoena.

FALL IS UPHELD

"The decision to release Fall was reached after the special counsel appointed by President Coolidge advised the committee that Fall, under the fifth amendment to the constitution, might claim immunity from the prosecution if forced to testify under protest.

In a formal opinion to the committee the counsel, Silas H. Strawn and Atlee Pomerene, said:

"If the committee should undertake to compel a witness to answer under duress, or by contempt proceedings in the Senate, or through the criminal process provided in Section 104 of the Revised Statutes, necessarily the government would be forced to take the position that Section 859 is co-extensive with the immunity provision of the fifth amendment to the constitution.

"If the witness is menaced by a threat, either of punishment for contempt or proceedings in the district court of the District of Columbia, he may acquiesce and testify, claiming that he is testifying under compulsion.

UPHOLDS HIS RIGHT.

"Such a witness might assert that under the constitution he cannot be compelled to be a witness against himself, and that, if indicted for an offence relating to the subject matter about which he is compelled to testify, he would be immune against the use of such testimony.

"The government, being forced to take the position, as above indicated, that Section 859 is co-extensive with the immunity of the Fifth Amendment, the witness doubtless insisted that the position taken by the government above referred to would work his complete immunity.

"In view of the provisions of the Fifth Amendment, we advise against permitting Fall to testify, unless he waives his constitutional privilege."

The Senate Public Lands Committee today received word from E. L. Doheny that he had made an error in testifying that he had paid former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo $250,000 for his services in oil litigation since the latter's retirement from the cabinet.

In a letter to Chairman Lenroot of the committee, Doheny said an examination of his books showed that McAdoo had received only $150,000, or $100,000 less than had previously been told the committee.

STORY OF DUEL IS NOT CLEAR TO POLICE

Curtis and Maid Differ in Details; Neighbors Also Questioned

The Newton police, after careful investigation of the shooting of a strange man in the home of Louis F. Curtis early today, are not ready to accept as complete the version as related by members of the Curtis family.

According to the story told the police, the colored maid at the Curtis family went into the sun parlor of he home to do her dusting about 7 o'clock, as was her custom. She saw a strange man on the couch, a revolver in one hand and a flashlight in the other.

The maid summoned Curtis, who secured his automatic pistol and hastened to the porch.

CLOSE RANGE DUEL.

"Who are you and what do you want," Curtis is said to have asked

The reply was a shot from the stranger, whereupon Curtis opened fire. The two men, almost at point blank range, returned shot for shot. Curtis told the police he fired five shots and that he was struck only by the first shot the stranger fired.

Then Curtis seized the stranger, ejected him from the house and called the police on the telephone.

NEIGHBORS AROUSED.

The house adjoining the handsome Curtis home is occupied by the family of John C. Kimball. According to members of the Kimball family they were awakened by the sound of the shooting in the Curtis home and both Mr. and Mrs. Kimball ran to the Curtis house.

As they approached the house they saw a reeling man board a trolley car.

When they entered the home they found the Curtis family excited. Members of the family told them the man who had just been shot was a stranger and they did not know whether he was injured.

tire Association denounces the suggestion, saying all sorts of rodents, squirrels, chipmunks, rabbits also carry the spotted fever tick.

IT MAY NOT be fair to pick on the mountain goat, an interesting animal and most pleasant to shoot—if you can't be happy unless you are killing something.

Nevertheless, it will be well for the human race—when the time comes, as it will—and all of our animal brothers and sisters shall have disappeared from earth; also all the inferior tribes of human beings.

Providence and Nature will know how to get rid of them gradually, but surely, and will do so.

RAMSAY MacDONALD releases Ghandi, at the same time announcing that he won't stand any revolutionary nonsense.

Ghandi's followers have learned that they were too enthusiastic about their leader. They circulated posters showing that he could lift Mt. Everest in his hand. Now they know that he couldn't even lift the roof or push open the door of a British prison. Facts count.

THE LATEST revolution in Mexico appears to be dying. Mexicans are energetic, but shipping United States arms to the established Mexican government, and permitting Mexican soldiers to march through United States territory, appears to have discouraged the most recent revolution.

This country doesn't wish to interfere with anybody's revolution, but would like, for Mexico's sake and ours, to see the Mexicans happy, going ahead without interruption.

IN A RACE against American cars at Stockholm, last Monday, a Swedish car driven by Swedish motor alcohol beat all the American cars. The latter used gasoline imported from the United States.

That's good news. Unlike oil wells, the supply of alcohol never can give out. We could get enough alcohol out of the corn stalks in the United States, and other vegetable matter, to run all the machinery of the United States. There is power inexhaustible. And the inside of an explosive engine is the right place for alcohol, not the inside of a man.

BIG DECREASE IN LOSS FROM FOREST FIRES

Addressing the forest fire conference at the City Club today Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Barnley said that while the damage caused by forest fires in New England during 1923 was $501,000, last year it was but $161,000, with a corresponding decrease in the number of acres burned over. He spoke of the co-operation of the railroads with regard to the prevention of sparks from engines, which start most of these fires. The cooperation of the State police, under the direction of Captain Parker, has also proved a great help, he said. Lieutenant Governor Alvan T. Fuller gave the speech of welcome.

DALLINGER IN CHILD LABOR BATTLE

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Child labor is analogous to human slavery and should be abolished by Federal action, Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger declared before the House Judiciary Committee today in supporting his amendment which would give Congress power to prohibit child labor.

Congressman Summers of Texas asked if the question of child labor should not be settled by the States.

Dallinger replied: "Certainly it should be settled by the States. We have been waiting for fifty years for the States to prohibit the exploitation of their children. The States should have settled this problem, but the trouble is they haven't and it is time now for the Federal government to step in and correct the evil."

GERMANY TO RECALL ENVOY TO U. S. WHO IGNORED WILSON

ACTION HITS BERLIN LIKE A BOMB

Apologizes for Ambassador Wiedfeldt's Refusal to Put the Flag at Half-Staff

By O. D. TOLISCHUS

Berlin, Feb. 7 (Universal Wireless).—Reports of the refusal of the German ambassador, Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, to lower the flag of the German Embassy in Washington on the occasion of the death of Woodrow Wilson, resulting in a storm of protests from the United States, fell like a bomb into Berlin.

It was announced that the German government had decided to recall Wiedfeldt.

Official Germany, as well as the whole German press from the right to the left extremes, unanimously repudiates Wiedfeldt's action, denouncing it as a blunder of the worst sort, an unnecessary slight to the American people, and likely to injure the increasingly friendly relations between Germany and America.

OFFERS APOLOGY

Foreign Minister Stresemann immediately called on Ambassador Houghton and transmitted to him what amounts to an official apology by the German government to America.

Stresemann is said to have told Ambassador Houghton that the German Government regretted the tactlessness of its ambassador on whose discretion it had relied.

Ambassador Wiedfeldt has been unpopular with the foreign office for some time, and is considered the "enfant terrible" of the German diplomatic corps.

He is accused of misinterpreting his instructions repeatedly, and with being unable to create a good position for himself, either socially or politically.

"THE LAST STRAW."

A change of ambassadors at Washington has been discussed in German government circles for a long time. The latest incident, combined with several previous ones, is declared to have definitely ended Wiedfeldt's usefulness at Washington and his return to Berlin within a few weeks is forecast.

Even the personality of his successor is being discussed, but it is expected that until a new ambassador is appointed the provisional charge d'affaires will carry on the business of the embassy.

The Foreign Office had instructed Wiedfeldt to abstain from the expression of any official condolences from the German government, but to use his discretion whether and which way he should participate in the national mourning ceremonies in America.

For later developments in this case see later editions of the American.

WILSON MEMORIAL SERVICE IN LONDON

London, Feb. 7.—The memorial service for the late Woodrow Wilson in St. Margaret's, Westminster, today was attended by a large assemblage of British and American notables, including the entire staffs of the American Embassy and Consulate and three members of the British cabinet, J. H. Thomas, Lord Haldane and Lord Parmoor.

Mr. MacDonald, as premier, was represented by Colonel Sir Ronald Waterhouse and as minister of foreign affairs by W. Selby Short. The eulogy was delivered by Canon Carnegie.

Protests Slur to Wilson by Mayor of Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Feb. 7.—Declaring that Mayor Hoan's attitude concerning Woodrow Wilson does not represent the true American sentiment of Milwaukee, John J. Welher, city clerk, will ask the Frank Stoolman Post of the American Legion to adopt a resolution terming Mayor Hoan's refusal to participate in national mourning a "disgrace to Milwaukee."

Welher scores the mayor for his refusal to sign the resolution of condolence adopted by the common council and Alderman Charles C. Schad for his refusal to stand when President Corcoran of the council asked for a rising vote of condolence to Mrs. Wilson.

FINED $10 FOR DRIVING WITHOUT A LICENSE

Italo Montani, twenty-three years old, of No. 1380 North Shore road, Revere, who was ordered Wednesday to make restitution in a larceny case in the Boston Municipal Court, was fined $10 today in East Boston Court for operating an automobile without a license. A charge of operating the machine without a certificate of registration was filed.

MEMORIAL TO HONOR WILSON

Many Plans Are Advanced to Erect a Suitable Monument; Body to Stay in Cathedral

Washington, Feb. 7.—Wrapped in the glory of death, Woodrow Wilson has found sanctuary under the towering arches of the Washington Cathedral, acclaimed by his countrymen and the world.

He was laid to his eternal rest in the silent vault with only the solemn, simple rites of religious service, as was his wish, often spoken to the sorrowing widow who today sought again to take up life's burdens with an aching sense of loss in her heart.

Before her still is the task of deciding what shall be the final resting place of her honored husband. For months, probably, he will lie in the vault to which he was committed, but a greater memorial one day will be reared for him, to show the ages in which men held him.

The dead President had given thought to the place where he would rest in death, and it will be within the District of Columbia that his ultimate tomb will be set. That has already been decided by Mrs. Wilson, in accordance with his wishes.

Above the vault where lies the casket that contains his body the cathedral structure has reached a point in building where the transepts north and south are next to be constructed.

The north transept, by tradition in England and the United States, is the transept of statesmen, where those may lie who gave great service to their countrymen in the civil walks of national life. Plans have been formed for the building of an adequate memorial to Woodrow Wilson in that transept of the cathedral beneath which he now rests.

As the plan now runs, the tomb would be built into the wall of the cathedral itself, and the casket so tenderly placed yesterday in the chapel vault would be sealed within its stone enclosure forever. Within the transept, on the main floor of the cathedral, a fitting memorial would be set as the inner face of the tomb.

Many projects for a suitable memorial to Woodrow Wilson have been discussed within the last few days by those who were his friends and followers in the days of his leadership. There are many diverse views among them, which have not yet shown signs of coming to a definite plan.

Why Germany Hastens in Apology to U. S.

Discrepancies in the incident which the German Ambassador refused to half-mast his flag prior to the funeral of ex-President Wilson are:

Statement by Baron Leopold Plessen, third secretary at the German embassy, that "the German government considers the late Mr. Wilson a private citizen and therefore has instructed the embassy to refrain from any official display of mourning."

Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German Ambassador, decided to half-mast the flag when protests against "orders from Berlin" not to do so were made by the American Legion.

Official statement from Berlin states Wiedfeldt was told to dispense with official condolences but could decide for himself "whether and in which way he may personally participate in the national mourning."

Berlin declares official Germany and the whole press repudiate Wiedfeldt's action and apologize to America.

NEW REVENUE BILL IS SENT TO HOUSE

Committee Looks for Early Action on Measure That Will Aid 1923 Taxpayers

Washington, Feb. 7.—The new revenue bill providing for a complete revision of Federal taxes and for a 25 per cent. reduction in 1923 income taxes was favorably reported to the House by the ways and means committee.

The vote was 15 to 2, eight of the eleven Democrats on the committee voting present, announcing they opposed income tax rates fixed by the Republicans in private on the lines suggested by Secretary Mellon, but did not wish to delay reporting the bill.

The Mellon income tax rate adopted by the committee provides for a reduction of 4 to 3 per cent. in the normal tax on the first $4,000 of net income and from 8 per cent. to 6 per cent. on the remainder of the net income. The maximum surtax rate was reduced from 50 per cent. to 25 per cent. on incomes of $100,000 and over, and was begun at 1 per cent. on net incomes of $10,000 instead of at $8,000.

Another feature of tax revision came up soon afterward in the House when debate was opened on the joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to prohibit the issuance of tax exempt securities.

The revenue measures provides for a saving to the taxpayer of about $320,000,000 annually, based on the revenue receipts of 1921, and for about $225,000,000 income taxes payable this year on 1923 incomes.

About $115,000,000 of the loss in revenue will be suffered through reductions in the indirect or war excise taxes, many of which were repealed entirely. The remainder results from the cut in income rates.

Postal Receipts Increase

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Postal receipts in fifty leading cities of the United States increased 4.40 per cent. in January, 1924, compared with the corresponding period last year.

CHARGES COOK DISCRIMINATES AGAINST VETS

General Edwards Raps Auditor for Failing to Give Jobs to Legion Members

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, State head of the American Legion, today charged before a legislative committee that Alonzo B. Cook, State Auditor, was actuated by prejudice and "plainly evaded the law" in his refusal to appoint American Legion men to positions for which they had qualified.

The fireworks were staged before the legislative Committee on State Administration when a bill, sponsored by State Auditor Cook, providing for the appointment of three auditors, was up for discussion.

Alonzo B. Cook

The bill provides that the state Auditor shall name the three appointments, subject only to the approval of the Governor and Council.

On the present civil service list from which the positions would ordinarily be filled, nine ex-service men stand at the head.

Daniel C. Dennilton, first deputy auditor, who represented Cook at the hearing, explained that the ex-service men were not appointed because they lacked practical experience, five years under actual working conditions being included as the proper qualification as a minimum, with one year as a minimum.

In rebuttal, John J. Walsh, employment officer for the American Legion, said that all the veterans who have passed the examination have had at least one year's experience, as required in the civil service tests.

$10,000,000 U. S. BONDS DESTROYED

Duplication Prober Charges President Harding Was Defied and Inquiry Thwarted

Washington, Feb. 7.—Investigation of charges that duplicate bonds have been destroyed in the Treasury Department was asked in a resolution introduced by Representative La Guardia of New York.

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.)—More than $10,000,000 worth of government bonds were destroyed in 1921, despite orders from President Harding to stop the destruction and lock up the bonds in the Treasury vaults, according to charges made here today by Charles B. Brewer, special assistant to the Attorney-General.

He has been investigating alleged duplication of bonds in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Brewer's charges were made public in connection with the suit he has instituted in the District of Columbia to restrain Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Attorney-General Daugherty from seizing certain "evidence" now in his possession.

"The President was defied and this investigation has been thwarted and nearly blocked by the Treasury Department," Brewer declared.

In view of the charges which Brewer has made against two members of the Cabinet a congressional investigation is promised.

Brewer alleges that many of the bonds which the Treasury destroyed as "duplicates" were not turned out through error, but were made to take the place of stolen bonds.

Official denial was made at the Treasury Department that there had been any duplication of bonds in the Engraving Bureau. It was stated that some duplication of numbers had occurred, but that this had resulted in no loss to the government.

The Secret Service was ordered by Secretary Mellon to conduct an investigation of the Brewer charges.

DECKHAND HELD IN ATTACK ON PRISONER

Joseph H. Fewers, twenty-eight years old, of No. 604 Tremont street, South End, a deck hand on the prison boat, George A. Hibbard, was arrested today, charged with assault on John Crossley, a former prisoner at Deer Island. It is alleged that that on January 12 Fewers and three prisoners attacked Crossley as he was on the gangplank of the steamer, which was about to sail from the island. So serious a beating did Crossley receive that he was taken back to the prison hospital, from which he was discharged yesterday.

Fewers had been paroled after serving a short term.

Two of the prisoners accused in the case, Ralph Rich and Fred Randall, are now serving long terms at Deer Island.

WILSON FLOWERS GO TO WOUNDED VETS

Washington, Feb. 7.—The great masses of flowers sent to the home of Woodrow Wilson to carry the message of esteem and reverence in which he was held ultimately will find their way into the cheerless rooms of wounded war veterans.

Many of them went to Walter Reed Army Hospital today, and others will follow.

Bethlehem chapel, where final services for the war President were conducted, was thrown open to the public today.

War veterans' organizations, it is said, will have representatives there to watch the trend of the meeting.

JACKSON WILL RUN AGAINST FULLER

State Treasurer to Be Candidate for G. O. P. Nomination for Governor

James Jackson, treasurer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, will be a candidate against Alvan T. Fuller in the September primaries for the Republican nomination for Governor.

James Jackson.

Mr. Jackson will make public and formal announcement of his candidacy, his friends say, within the next few days. It will be no surprise to Lieutenant Governor Fuller.

The Lieutenant-Governor who has made a fortune in the automobile business, is shortly to celebrate his forty-sixth birthday. State Treasurer Jackson, who was graduated from Harvard twenty years ago, is a few years his junior.

Mr. Jackson, who makes his home in Westwood, is the son of James Jackson, who was a member of the banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. His son was connected with that firm for nine or ten years after coming from college. In 1917 he became New England manager of the Red Cross Society, and in the war years distinguished himself in that connection.

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller, who, his friends say, thrives on opposition and loves a battle, two years ago received 884,000 votes for his present office, leading Senator Lodge by 70,000 and Governor Cox by 20,000 votes.

IF SKIN IS UGLY OR BREAKS OUT APPLY SULPHUR

Says Mentho-Sulphur Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement, it quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

GEORGE ADMITS HE TOLD OF U. S. PACT

Former British Premier Will Explain Reference to Wilson and Clemenceau

London, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—The Daily Chronicle, personal organ of former Premier David Lloyd George, announced today that, due to the widespread interest in the report of a secret compact between the late President Woodrow Wilson and ex-Premier Georges Clemenceau regarding French occupation of the Rhineland, Lloyd George will write a detailed article on the subject which will be printed one week from Saturday. This article is expected to reveal the text of the alleged secret compact.

Lloyd George confined his comment to the following:

"The facts as recorded in the statement are substantially correct."

Friends of the ex-Premier said he was astonished when he learned that the story had been printed.

The statements attributed to the ex-Premier were made in the course of informal conversation while Harold Spender, a journalist, was on a week-end visit to Lloyd George's home.

While Foreign Office officials are displeased with the remarks attributed to the former Premier, they refuse to disclose the exact nature of the documents which France asked permission to publish.

According to statements attributed to Lloyd George, while he was absent from Paris during the peace conference, Woodrow Wilson and Georges Clemenceau signed a secret agreement approving French occupation of the German Rhineland for fifteen years.

Clemenceau Denies Any Secret Agreement

Paris, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Former Premier Clemenceau, after reading the text of the statements ascribed to David Lloyd George concerning a secret pact between Clemenceau and Woodrow Wilson in regard to the occupation of the Rhineland, today asked to be excused from making a declaration.

"If Lloyd George will produce a secret agreement between Wilson and me, I will pay the reparations," was his only comment.

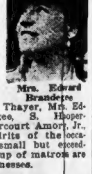
Last Assembly of Season To Be Held Tomorrow Night, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN

SOCIETY'S most strictly blue-pencilled aristocracy will fill the horseshoe at the Boston Opera House tomorrow evening.

Following the performance of Edith Mason in "Manon," many of the listeners will make their way to the Copley Plaza for the second and last Assembly of the season.

As everyone knows, to be bidden to the Assemblies is to possess the open sesame to society's innermost circles.



Mrs. Edward Brandegee

As usual, such prominent folk as Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Edward Brandegee, S. Hooper Hooper and Harcourt Amory, Jr., are leading spirits of the occasion, while a small but exceedingly select group of matrons are acting as patronesses.

SPEAKING of Mrs. "Nat" Thayer, this distinguished matron is one of the "four hundreds" most indefatigable Mah Jongg players.

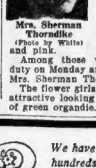
This game, which has been played in the Orient even in the days of Confucius, has caught society by storm, and bridge, for the time being, at least, seems more or less of a back number.

Several evenings of each week intimates of Mrs. Thayer drop in at the Fairfield street residence for a few hours with the "game of a thousand mysteries," as it has been called.

AND speaking of Mah Jongg in turn reminds me that a most important feature of "Wake Up," the Vincent Club show will be a very gorgeous Mah Jongg scene.

Here, of course, are splendid opportunities for marvelous costumes, the girls taking part in this scene to depict the winds and the dragons and other figures of the game.

As simple as they were pretty were the costumes worn by the ushers at the three performances of "Mlle. Modiste," given this week by the Junior League at the Copley Theatre.



Mrs. Sherman Thorndike (Photo by White)

The boy girls marshaled together for the occasion by Miss Eleanor Huneman were all dressed alike in frocks of flowered cretonne, gay-looking affairs of blue and pink.

Among those who did usher duty on Monday and Tuesday was Mrs. Sherman Thorndike.

The flower girls, too, were most attractive looking in their dresses of green organdie.

TRY CORCORAN AND COAKLEY TOGETHER

Court Refuses O'Brien Plea That Perjury Cases Be Heard Separately

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien today failed in an effort to obtain separate trials for William J. Corcoran and Daniel H. Coakley, indicted for perjury.

Judge Bishop in Superior Court denied the motions for separate trials and refused to advance the date of the trial as sought by Mr. O'Brien.

The perjury charge grew out of a suit before Justice Wait, then a Superior Court judge, of Meyer Berman, who sought to recover $50,000 which he claimed Coakley had extorted from him. Corcoran and Coakley are charged with false testimony in regard to the former's signature on a note put in evidence.

District Attorney O'Brien today asked the court to advance Corcoran's trial to February 11, to be followed immediately by the trial of Coakley.

EVIDENCE SECRET.

Attorney Joseph P. Walsh opposed both motions and called the attention of Judge Bishop to the fact that after a conference in the judge's chambers it had been decided the trials would be held jointly, starting February 25.

District Attorney O'Brien informed the court there were certain reasons why the State desired separate trials for the men. He declared there was some evidence which applied to Corcoran which did not apply to Coakley, but informed the court that at this time he did not desire to disclose the nature of this evidence.

Judge Bishop stated that in the conference in the lobby both parties agreed to February 25 as the date of trial and in event the State was not ready at that time the cases would be nolle prossed and defaulted.

"Didn't you so understand the matter at that time" the court asked the district attorney. Mr. O'Brien said he did so understand.

AGE OF THE INK.

"Then I am very much surprised at the motions you have made," replied the court.

Judge Bishop, after inspecting the note, said there was no question about the authenticity of the signature of Corcoran. The judge remarked that the only question was as to the age of the ink.

The court announced that the same experts will be used in both cases and that it was clear to him that both Corcoran and Coakley were to be tried together.

RESCUE WOMAN NEAR DEATH BY SMOKE

Fire Destroys a Springfield Apartment, With Loss of $15,000

Springfield, Feb. 7.—Trapped in her room and overcome by smoke, Mrs. Lillian Farley, who occupied the third floor of the apartment house at Walnut and Manhatten streets, was rescued by policemen when the building was destroyed by fire early today. The loss is $15,000.

When the fire broke out on the first floor the members of the four other families fled.

Patrolmen Adams and Morrison fought their way through the smoke and flames and found the woman unconscious on the floor of her bedroom. They carried her to a front window, where firemen took her.

Mrs. Farley was taken into a nearby house and a physician was able to restore her to consciousness.

Wau Kee, who conducted a laundry in the first floor, was aroused with difficulty when the fire was discovered.

16 NUNS FLEE AS MAINE SCHOOL IS DESTROYED

Van Buren, Me., Buildings Burn to Ground, With Loss of $150,000

Van Buren, Me., Feb. 7.—Two brick buildings occupied by the Sacred Heart School and the Sisters of Mercy were destroyed by fire today, causing damage between $150,000 and $200,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown, but when discovered the school building was in flames. The fire spread rapidly to the residence of the Sisters of Mercy and sixteen inmates were obliged to leave most of their personal belongings behind in their hasty exit.

The school building was a modern structure with accommodations for 400 pupils, who did not reside in the building. The residence of the sisters was built five years ago and was of three stories.

Pits Horse Against Auto and Wins His Lady Laura

"Youth in Overalls," With Faithful Nag, Beats Town's Only Taxi, Also His Rival

Of the funniest thing
I like to brag
Was a plough horse
Heatin' a taxicab.
—Sage of Cowbell Corner.

North Salem, N. H., Feb. 7.—Speak of Zev, mention Papyrus, boast of Grey Lag, but here in the village the nag who will go down in history as the "Hidey" of 'em all is "Black Bess." She's sad of face and sadder of limb, but she won Carl Wilson a bride and flung a horse-laugh at North Salem's lone taxicab.

Bess may never be stuffed, as was Jumbo, but her local fame will never down. So long as folks hang round the grocery store at Cowbell Corner, just so long will the name of Bess be buzzed with respect and her Paul Revere-like canter be rehearsed and relived.

AND YOUTH WON.

Bess did menial chores on the Carl Wilson place. Across the street is North Salem's only mansion, the big brick house of Herbert A. Parker, at Wilson's corners. Carl was an overalled widower. He loved Parker's housekeeper, Laura True. Parker loved her also.

It was a race between youth and old age.

The issue came to a head when both men rushed to the town clerk for a license to wed Laura.

Wealthy Mr. Parker chose a taxicab and laughed his scorn as Carl, the brave young hero, hitched valiant old Bess to an ancient sleigh. Out on the snow-swept country road they raced.

"Curses," said Old Man Parker, as the flivver went back on him half-way to his goal.

"On Bess; on, old girl," said young Carl, as he raced past the broken-down taxi.

THOSE SWEET WORDS.

He crested a hill and dropped from sight as his foe was berating the lone village taxicabbor to revive his steel steed.

Carl returned triumphant with the license to wed Laura. On Sunday a justice of the peace at Atkinson chanted the words which made them man and wife.

Outside the Town Hall, still keeping to the elements of Way Down East melodrama, awaited the enraged and disappointed suitor.

"You will repent your action of today when you gaze upon my body," he said to the bride. Then vanished.

"It's a curse," said a sage at Cowbell Corner today, scoring a bullseye on the agate spittoon.

NOW SHE'S WAITING.

Herb Parker is still missing. His brick mansion is housekeeperless. Only "Whiskers," the cat, and "Ancient," the hound dog, are seen.

The bride has gone to Haverhill to wait until her new hubby makes some money—he's taken a job at Orin Read's place up near Arlington Dam. Up at Cowbell Corner his two little daughters, Violet, seven, and Eunice, two, are stopping with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson.

The only moral to the tale, according to the sage of Cowbell Corner, is that Old Man Parker with his wealth sneered at Carl and his overalls.

It's all right to sneer, says the sage, but it's safer to sneer in a Rolledrice than a flivver, especially on the roads up here.

"I am the happiest woman in the world," said the plump bride today.

She is forty-five, mother of two married daughters, but with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes looks younger. She had just returned from Haverhill.

"I have two objects in life," she said, "to buy lots of sugar for Bess and to make my husband happy.

"I am going to keep house for his employer, Mr. Read. Carl will live there, of course, and we will have our honeymoon in our work."

She sighed.

"Just think, if it hadn't been for Bess I might have been wedded to that old man."

She referred to the missing Parker.

"He gave me a lovely opal ring two weeks ago, but I gave it back to him.

"Huh, who wants to wed Winter when Spring is here."

And she stepped into the barnyard and after caressing Bess, kissed her overalled husband.

The plan calls for the selection each year of three American citizens judged to have rendered the greatest service to humanity in science, education and government, who will be designated "guests of the nation." HUERTA MOVES REBEL CAPITAL TO TUXPAM

Vera Cruz Cleared of Mexican Insurgents as Federals Enter the City Without Bloodshed

Brownsville, Tex., Feb. 7.—General Adolfo De La Huerta has moved the capital of the revolutionary government to Tuxpani, Vera Cruz, going to that port, accompanied by his staff on the Aguila Oil Company boat, according to a radiogram to the Associated Press.

Mexico City, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Now that the Federals have occupied Vera Cruz normal maritime traffic will be restored there immediately.

There are upwards of $5,000,000 in United States imports piled up in Vera Cruz warehouses that accumulated there during the two months the rebels held the port. Also, there are huge quantities of goods from Vera Cruz and Puebla awaiting export.

With the Huertista revolt in a state of complete collapse, the war department looks for only one more battle—this time on the Western front.

There is every indication that the chasing of guerilla bands will engage the occupation of the army for months to come.

General Guadalupe Sanchez, one of the chief military leaders among the revolutionaries, is a fugitive with a handful of men in the dense forested mountains near Orizaba. So precipitate was the rebel flight that their plans to destroy railways, bridges and tunnels miscarried.

CAT VICTIM OF FIRST LETHAL GAS EXECUTION

Test Nevada Death Chamber in Which Two Slayers Will Die Tomorrow

Carson City, Nevada, Feb. 7 (AP).—The first lethal gas execution in which two men have been sentenced to die Friday will be given a rehearsal in the death chamber in the yard of the Nevada State Prison today.

A cat will be the victim of the experiment and experts supervising the executions will endeavor to learn how quickly the cat dies and whether the arrangements for releasing the hydrocyanic vapor afterwards are satisfactory.

Four prison guards sent in their resignations to the warden today, stating that they were unwilling to have any part in the execution.

The condemned men are Gee Jon, Chinese tong slayer, and Thomas Russell, American-born Mexican, convicted of killing his Indian sweetheart.

The necessary precautions have been taken to insure the safety of executioners, attendants, physicians and spectators, but no gas masks will be worn. Once the gas is pumped out of the death chamber it will flow harmlessly over the prison walls.

The witnesses will view the execution through a window in the chamber.

SECOND VICTIM SUCCUMBS IN GUN BATTLE

Louisiana Merchant Who Killed Ex-Woman Mayor Dies From Her Shots

New Orleans, La., Feb. 7.—Louis Meyer, who shot and killed Mrs. Roland Clark, former mayor of Palmetto, during a gun battle in that place, after he had been wounded by the woman, died later in a hospital here, where he was taken after the battle.

Wilda Clark, eighteen years old, daughter of Mrs. Clark, was seriously wounded in the fight. Her brother, Cleon, nineteen, also participated in the shooting, but was not wounded.

Mrs. Clark was killed by Meyer, who was a Palmetto merchant, after she had shot him twice. After Meyer had killed Mrs. Clark he was said by witnesses to have continued firing, one of the bullets striking the Clark girl. A bullet from the girl's pistol struck Meyer in the head, and a load of shot from a shotgun, said to have been fired by her brother, Cleon, found lodgment in the merchant's leg.

According to advices received here from Palmetto, the shooting was said to have grown out of a political controversy which started several years ago, when Mrs. Clark was elected mayor of Palmetto over a candidate supported by Meyer. In a primary recently Mrs. Clark was defeated for re-election by one vote, which she was reported to have charged was obtained by Meyer sending to Port Arthur, La., for his brother to go to Palmetto and vote for her opponent, Isaacson.

Witnesses testified at the inquest that Mrs. Clark, after questioning Meyer about alleged disparaging remarks the woman charged he had made about her daughter, drew a pistol and shot Meyer. He clinched with her, and as she broke loose from his grasp both began firing. Mrs. Clark was shot five times. Meyer witnesses said, then turned his pistol on the daughter.

The husband now resides in Connecticut.

HOUNDS AND POSSE TRAIL WOMAN-SLAYER

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 7.—Posses with bloodhounds today were searching for the slayer of Mrs. Nellie Modis, sixty-two, proprietor of a grocery store at Smith station, who was stabbed to death in her store. A brother, alarmed because of her failure to return home, found the body. Robbery is believed to have been the motive for the killing. A message received here several hours after the hunt started said the dogs had picked up a trail.

ITALY IS SOON TO RECOGNIZE SOVIETS

Moscow, Feb. 7.—Italian recognition of the Soviet government probably will come within a few days, according to Maxim Litvinoff, who said that Mussolini sought to get the treaty signed last Sunday, immediately following news of the British recognition. The Russian delegation in Rome, however, desired to confer with Moscow regarding certain points in the trade treaty.

INSULIN CURES DAUGHTER OF HUGHES

Diabetes Victim Weighed Only 45 Pounds at 14; in Perfect Health Today

Elizabeth, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Secretary of State Hughes, a life-long sufferer from diabetes, has been restored in less than two years to perfect health through the use of insulin, it has just been learned.

While a child it was discovered that the girl was suffering from the strange malady of the pancreas gland which makes it impossible for the human body to assimilate starches and sugars. Without these essential foods, the body literally starves. At the age of fourteen she weighed only forty-five pounds.

DECEMBER JAGS RAISE TOTAL FOR YEAR

Police Records Show 38,988 Arrests, 3,479 in the Closing Month

The old theory that a hard Winter whets a drinker's appetite was given a rap today, when it was reported at police headquarters that the number of drunks picked up during the month of December, 1923, showed an increase of 621 over December, 1922. December last was warm and sunny, in marked contrast to the previous December.

Total arrests for December last were 3,479; for the same month of 1922, 2,858. During the past year 38,988 persons were arrested under the influence of liquor, an increase of 1,345 over 1922.

DAUGHTER AND SISTER FIGHT WOMAN'S WILL

Declare Mrs. Irene Conroy Unduly Influenced by Attorney Patron

Attorney William J. Patron of Boston, counsel for the late Mrs. Irene Conroy of Everett, "kissed her and was more than a lawyer to her," and therefore used undue influence when Mrs. Conroy left him $10,000 in her will.

This is the charge made by Miss Mildred Dunn, No. 22 Prospect street, Everett, a niece of Mrs. Conroy, and Mrs. Mary Lang Hans, also of Everett, a sister, who are attempting to break the will in the Middlesex County Probate Court.

In an effort to show that Mrs. Conroy was easily influenced, witnesses testified that Mrs. Conroy believed she frequently talked with the spirit of her husband, the late Dr. Peter Conroy, and that she was studying for grand opera with her dead husband as teacher.

It was testified by various officers that Mrs. Conroy had called the police station several times in succession to report supposed robberies in her home, and that each time the missing articles had been found in the home.

Mrs. Conroy died in February, 1923. The will was made in September, 1922.

Patron is acting as his own counsel. The contestants are represented by Elmer E. Spear and John F. Casy.

SICK WOMAN MADE HAPPY

Entirely Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mart, Texas.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up as was all run-down, nervous and sick. I ached and hurt all over so that I was often compelled to go to bed, and I had to have most of my work done. No medicine seemed to help me until one of my neighbors who was taking the Vegetable Compound insisted on me trying a bottle of it. The medicine helped me from the first, and the best of all is that I can even sew again without that awful, nervous feeling I was used to having. And I used to take crying spells, with such a blue feeling that I cannot explain. Now all that has left me. I feel so cheerful, and I have gained in weight, sleep well and eat hearty. Oh! I wish I had words to express what this medicine has done for me! I am a housekeeper and do every thing from the sewing to the washing now and it doesn't hurt me. You may use my letter in any way you wish. I will be glad to help any suffering woman to the road of health and happiness."—Mrs. B.F. BRANNON, 604 Travis Ave., Mart, Texas

GIRL BANDIT AGAIN ROBS SAME MAN

Bobbed Hair Terror Returns to Drug Store, as She Said She Would

New York, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Brooklyn's much hunted bobbed haired girl bandit staged another hold-up today.

Accompanied by three armed male companions, she drove up to the drug store of Benjamin Jospey, and, while she waited in the machine, the motor of which ran kept running, her confederates entered the place and got away with $199.

Jospey was covered with guns and did not dare move.

The hold-up was for a surprise to Jospey. The girl had robbed him before. When she held up his store on January 13, taking $150, she warned him:

"I'll be back soon for a little more of your coin."

After the girl and her companions dashed away in their big machine, Jospey spoke feelingly of "lack of police protection."

The police, who arrested two bobbed-haired young women yesterday as suspects, now admit they didn't get the right girl.

TUMULT RENEWED IN FRENCH CHAMBER

Paris, Feb. 7.—Violent demonstrations which marked the close of yesterday's session of the Chamber of Deputies were resumed when the House reconvened today and again took up the measures demanded by the government through which it seeks to effect economies by decree. STORM-BOUND PASSENGERS FACE HUNGER

Isolated Wisconsin Town Runs Short of Food; Big Blizzard Causes Loss of Millions

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Residents of Reedsville, Wis., "eaten out of house and home" by passengers on railroad trains stalled since Monday night within the village limits, are facing a serious food shortage. Reports reaching Milwaukee are that the town, of 600 population, had been cleaned out of staple foods.

A relief train left Kaukauna, Wis., but despite two rotary snowplows, it was stalled time after time in heavy drifts and it is not known whether it got through as wires in that section of the State are down.

The city of Two Rivers, Wis., has been cut off for two days and the only source of food supplies is said to be tugboats bringing in supplies from Manitowoc. In many parts of Wisconsin snowdrifts twenty feet deep are holding up transportation.

Railroad companies report schedules restored to normal with the exception of lines in the extreme Northwest.

Chicago surface and elevated line officials estimate the damage and labor expenses caused by the storm as close to a half-million dollars. Telephone and telegraph companies place their losses at several millions throughout the storm area.

Midwest Papers Get Their News by Radio

Chicago, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—The Midwest today struggled to re-establish its regular channels of communication after three days of uncertain telegraph and no telephone service.

Radio stepped into the breach. Westinghouse station KYW, the world over, co-operating with International News Service, sent reports to papers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa every half hour.

GIRL IS FOUND ON FROZEN RIVER

St. John, N. B., Feb. 7.—The Woodstock police are investigating the case of a Houlton, Me., girl of eighteen, whose name they decline to give. She was taken to the hospital at Woodstock early after being found on the ice of the St. John River below the main bridge. The girl and another of about the same age, also from Houlton, have been in Woodstock about a week, and late last night they and two young men went on the bridge.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping in the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

AMERICAN PEACE SOCIETY DENOUNCES WINNING BOK PLAN

MISREPRESENTS FACTS AND IS FULL OF HOLES, THEY SAY

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Washington, Feb. 7 (C.N.S.)—The American Peace Society today scathingly attacked the Bok peace plan.

The plan is faulty, full of holes, unsupported by many misrepresentations of fact and will not receive a verdict of an impartial referendum, as it proposes a method of bringing peace which is neither original nor unique, the society said.

Attacking the winning plan, which would put the United States into the League of Nations and yet keep us out, and which would attach the country to the World Court minus the Harding and Hughes reservations the society adds:

"The only new thing in these proposals is that the author is to receive $50,000 at once and, if his plan meets with the approval of the United States Senate or with an adequate degree of popular support on or before March 4, 1925, he is to receive $50,000 more. That is new."

CONDEMN "POPULAR VOTE."

Both in the manner of selecting the judges and of submitting the plan to "popular vote" are condemned by the society. Its condemnation is printed in a long editorial appearing in the "Advocate of Peace," its official monthly magazine.

Of the manner of choosing judges the society says:

"The people whom Mr. Bok called to help in the promotion of his purpose are above reproach. As is generally known, practically all of them were, before their appointment, predisposed to favor the League of Nations.

"Had Mr. Bok chosen for his committee of award, say, three persons known to be intelligently opposed to the League, three known to favor it and one outstanding neutral—if such there be—and if a number of plans had been selected for the referendum, then something might have been developed likely to meet with support of the United States Senate. That would have been better.

CHARGE PROPAGANDA.

The Peace Society itself offered a prize eighty-four years ago for the best essay on the Congress of Nations, selected five plans and offered them to the public for selection.

"It all savors of an organized propaganda in favor of the League of Nations," the society declared.

"Only one plan has been submitted to the public. A simple affirmative and negative vote under those circumstances cannot be very illuminating. Those prejudiced in favor of the plan will vote for it in a larger proportion than those who are opposed.

"It is wholly unlikely that the ballot will give anything like an accurate picture of public sentiment.

MISREPRESENTATION OF FACT.

"The plan as a whole is surprisingly filled with misrepresentations of fact. It seems incredible that anyone can say seriously that there is not more room for more than one organization to promote international co-operation. There are at least 1,000 such organizations now working at that very business.

"He (Dr. Levermore, author of the plan) says the United States maintains a theoretical policy of isolation, which, according to his own statement of facts, is not true. Contrary to his implication, the Washington conference for the limitation of armament had nothing to do with the League of Nations."

RELAY OF MEN CARRY WOMAN TO HOSPITAL

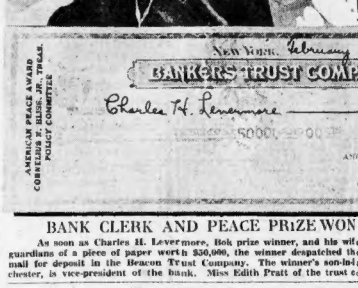
Parkersburg, W. Va., Feb. 7.—Twenty-eight men, working in relays, were required to carry Mrs. Ray Prunty on a cot from Oxford, a remote section of Ritchie county, to the railroad station at Toll Gate, in order that she might be brought to a hospital here.

Impassable roads over mountains and through valleys, made the journey necessary, after the village doctor had decided she needed hospital treatment.

"TWELVE OLD MAIDS" ENTERTAIN CLUB

"Twelve Old Maids," a three-act play given at Bloomfield Hall, Dorchester, by the Dramatic Club of Court Irma, No. 318, C. D. of A., proved the most entertaining and successful effort of the club, in the opinion of those present. A program of readings by Miss Mae V. Morris preceded the play. Miss Frances C. Noonan presided.

$50,000 BOK CHECK DEPOSITED IN HUB



BANK CLERK AND PEACE PRIZE WON BY LEVERMORE

As soon as Charles H. Levermore, Bok prize winner, and his wife had grown accustomed to being guardians of a piece of paper worth $50,000, the winner despatched the check to Boston by registered mail for deposit in the Beacon Trust Company. The winner's son-in-law, Christopher L. Billman of Winchester, is vice-president of the bank. Miss Edith Pratt of the trust company is seen holding the check.

3 HORSES DIE IN BLAZE AT WINTHROP

ith Animal, Suffering From Burns, Shot; Damage in Stable Fire $2,000

Three horses were burned to death and a fourth had to be shot, while three more were rescued by firemen from a burning stable in the rear of No. 369 Winthrop street, Winthrop today. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

The entire Winthrop fire department was called out to battle the flames, which threatened to spread to the two-story wooden stable to surrounding buildings.

Fireman John Norris, attached to Engine No. 1, cut his nose severely when he caught on a clothesline while dashing across the yard. He was treated at the Winthrop Community Hospital.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. William Cedar, wife of the owner of the stable. Mrs. Cedar had been awakened by her baby crying and was preparing a bottle of milk for it when she looked out of the kitchen window and saw the flames. She gave the alarm.

MELLON FAVORS CORPORATIONS, SAYS COUZENS

Senator Renews Attack on the Treasury Head in Row Over Income Tax Bill

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.)—A fresh chapter was written today in the famous millionaire-tax correspondence between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator James Couzens, Republican, Michigan, two of the wealthiest men in the country.

Senator Couzens returned to the attack on the Mellon bill and accused the Secretary of the Treasury of favoring corporations to the detriment of the individual taxpayers.

"The greatest loophole for avoiding surtaxes is the formation of holding companies," said Couzens. "Will you agree to the proposal to tax all dividends and interest that holding companies receive on the same basis you tax individuals?

"Is there any reason why corporations should not pay the same income tax on their receipts from interest on bank balances, dividends, and interest on bonds as individuals do?

"You are directing no efforts to get at the corporations, but rather are playing directly into their hands.

"Your own bank, the Mellon National of Pittsburgh, holds nearly $40,000,000 on which it pays no taxes whatsoever. The Chase National of New York is reported to hold nearly $80,000,000. You know that individuals holding these securities would have to pay income taxes. Why do you not recommend a remedy for this discrimination.

U. S. ONLY TO OBSERVE ARMS CUT PARLEYS

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.)—The United States will delegate official observers to attend the conference on the limitation of naval armament to be held at Rome February 14.

The delegates will take no part in the proceedings, but will report the findings of the commission and will submit an opinion of the treaties or conventions that subsequently are drawn up. If the United States is asked to subscribe to these treaties the opinion of the observers will probably determine the policy of the government.

Cable Briefs

Paris—Announcement is made here that Spain will sign the Tangier, Morocco, accord. It establishes international rights in Morocco.

Geneva—The League of Nations commission to mediate the boundary dispute between Lithuania and Poland departed for Memel today. Norman Davis of the United States is chairman. Both nations claim Memel.

Moscow—A stay of execution in the death sentences against General Pepelayev, former commander of the Siberian White Army, and twenty of his followers has been ordered by the Siberian Revolutionary Committee. The committee has urged pardon of the prisoners.

RAW MEAT KILLS ONE AND FIVE ARE DYING

A dose at bedtime of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Made them feel jolly again

Good Health In Happy Old Age

THE chief concern of elderly people is their health, and that is best assured by regular daily bowel movement. There is no truth, however, in the notion that because you are old you need a "strong physic." In fact, just because you are old a mild laxative is better for you. The trouble with purges and cathartics and physics is that they shock the system and weaken it and make the muscles of digestion flabby. Dr. G. H. Brown, V. S., of Frederic, Wis., recently wrecked his stomach with purgatives. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin restored his health, as it did Mrs. J. S. Etheridge's, of Milledgeville, Ga.

Does Not Gripe

You can be sure of satisfactory evacuations every day if you will take a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin at night when you retire. You will not need to take it very long as a few doses will soon encourage the bowels to act for themselves. The popularity of this wonderful family remedy has become so great that it is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Because of its mild laxes and freedom from griping it is especially ideal for the extremes of ages, for children and for elderly people.

Effective at Small Cost

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store. The formula is on the package, and the cost less than a cent a dose. Take it when you feel heavy, sleep poorly, have headache or night cramps, for these are also symptoms of constipation. Give it to the children when they are restless, feverish or have a cold. Syrup Pepsin will keep you and the family free from constipation, a condition that lowers the vitality 25 per cent and raises the blood pressure 28 per cent. Freedom from constipation lessens the pain of kidney trouble, neuritis and rheumatism.

Would You Want to Try It Free Before Buying?

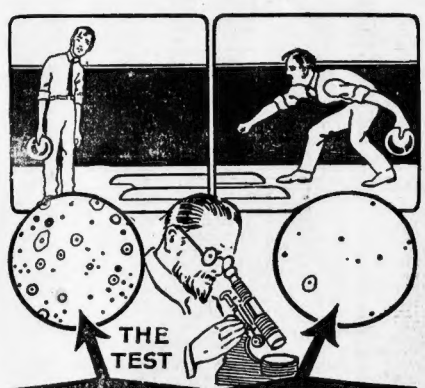
DRUGGED! INDICAN Shows Why Most People Feel That Way

ASK your doctor about INDICAN. He will tell you it is a substance looked for in examining his patients thoroughly. If he finds it in you—it means that the poisons of constipation are seeping through your blood into every muscle and every joint. This is what does the damage. It robs you of your pep—it poisons your optimism and good spirit—it pales your face and puts blemishes there—it gives you headaches—causes indigestion. No wonder you feel drugged when constipated.

You can get only temporary relief from most laxatives. But Carter's Little Liver Pills, it has been found, not only "physic" the stomach, liver and intestines quickly, but also drive the INDICAN away.



He didn't know he was constipated—he felt "run down." See how the test proves he had INDICAN—the poison of constipation.

Same man after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills for only a few days—note the clean, normal specimen — FREE FROM ANY TRACE OF INDICAN.

Make This Test: Have an analysis made of your specimen, and if the doctor reports the presence of INDICAN, or if you can "feel" how poisoned you are—immediately start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills as prescribed by him, or according to directions. Now have another test made and see how the INDICAN disappears. See how your complexion brightens and clears, your tongue is sweet and clean, you can eat like a kid again, in most cases.

Important: Carter's Little Liver Pills, used for 67 years by millions of people all over the world, is a purely vegetable preparation and contains no drugs of any nature. It therefore acts in a natural way and is non-habit forming. Money refunded if results are not satisfactory.

ITALIANS GET ASSURANCE ON ALIEN BILL

Eleven Bay State Congressmen Pledge Support in Immigration Measure Fight

By JOHN LAMBERT.

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.)—Pledges to oppose the drastic anti-Italian features of the Johnson Immigration Bill were obtained from ten of the eighteen Massachusetts Congressmen by the delegation from Boston, headed by Andrew Badaracco.

Senator Walsh and Congressmen Tague, Connery and Gallivan, Democrats, and Tinkham, Andrew, Underhill, Frothingham, Greene and Luce, Republicans, agreed to go through to the bitter with the protesting Italians in their fight.

Senator Lodge has introduced an anti-immigration bill which they regard as harmful to them. Congressmen Winslow, Treadway and Rogers ask for "more time to consider it." Speaker Gillett said he was uninformed about the bill. Congressmen Dallinger, Paige and Clifford are to be visited.

The Johnson bill will reduce immigration of Italians here from 40,000 to 2,000 a year.

"Congress, in its present state of mind, is likely to pass this bill," said Jerome Petitti. "If it does, I fear the Italian voters of Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island and Connecticut, mostly Republicans, will leave the Republican party in a body."

AGED PAIR IDENTIFY MAN HELD AS ROBBER

Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Latarella, an aged couple of No. 846 Summer street, East Boston, in the East Boston Court today identified Alfred Brenci, forty-four years old, of No. 306 Eutaw street, East Boston, as the man who entered their home on the night of January 30 last and beat and tried to rob them of $1,200. Brenci was held at $10,000 for the Grand Jury and in default of bail was committed to Charles Street Jail.

Unlock the hidden beauty in your skin!

Lurking beneath the surface—yes, however marred with blemishes it may be—is a hidden perfection only waiting to be released

BELOW those unsightly blemishes, deep down where patchwork remedies fail even to reach, natural forces in your skin are fighting day and night to counteract the harsh conditions of daily life.

Unaided, these forces fight a losing battle, and imperfections appear. A little help on your part, and the balance will swing toward that clear, clean complexion you have perhaps always envied in others.

This is a scientific fact, say skin specialists.

This easy method of daily care is based simply on the idea of keeping the skin functioning normally

To cleanse the pores of dust and germs, to gently restore the pulsing life of the tiny capillaries in the lower layers of the skin, to carry off infection, and then to stop new infection before it starts—thousands have learned to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment.

Try it today yourself. Work gently into the pores a thick lather of Resinol Soap; then rinse off, and splash on a dash of cold water. Then, with special irritations or blemishes, apply a touch of Resinol Ointment. If possible, leave it on overnight. In the morning wash off again with Resinol Soap.

Within a week you will begin to notice the difference in your skin—a finer, softer texture—a ruddier glow—a clearing of the ugly little blemishes.

Resinol Ointment also for more serious skin affections

Not only is Resinol Ointment used everywhere for clearing away minor skin blemishes but its soothing, healing properties have for years been successfully relieving more stubborn skin affections. Rashes and eczema—often itching, unpleasant and embarrassing—will in many cases vanish in a few days. Thousands have wondered at the quickness of its action. Even a light application sinks deep into the pores, attacks the root of the disorder, and starts the skin again acting normally. Resinol is absolutely harmless. It will not irritate even the delicate texture of an infant's skin.

RESINOL SOAP and OINTMENT

Send today for free trial cases of both Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. Address Dept. 11, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

BANDITS STEAL TRUCK FROM CARAVAN

Bind and Gag Drivers and Disappear With Load of Groceries

Trenton, N. J., Feb 7.—Seven armed bandits today cut off from a caravan of motor trucks a van owned by the Pennsylvania Transportation Company of Philadelphia and disappeared with the machine after beating the driver bound and gagged in a small garage at Fieldsboro.

The truck is said to have contained produce and groceries, although the State police believe the thieves were seeking either whiskey or silk.

A sedan drew alongside the truck and at the point of a gun the driver was ordered to alight. He was placed in the sedan and driven from the scene by three of the bandits while the other five mounted the truck and drove off.

1,500 BOSTON PUPILS GIVEN SCHICK TEST

Serum Is Administered by the Health Experts; Dr. Seconi Defends Treatment of the children and their parents and, according to Dr. John A. Seconi, director of the bureau of communicable diseases, indicate that the Schick immunization test will continue in the Boston schools.

"We have just completed the testing and immunizing of 300,000 persons in the city of Boston without a single skin infection," says Dr. Seconi, "and our answer to the organization which will use the Concord Academy incident as propaganda will be that record. Within the past week we have treated 45,000 pupils of parochial and private schools in the city and inoculation has been successful without exception.

SERUM FOUND PERFECT.

"Freezing the serum of course, as does the freezing of milk, fruit and similar things, liberates toxin, and in the case of the Schick serum, destroyed the anti-toxin.

"This serum is prepared under most careful conditions at the health department in Washington, and had been analyzed before shipment and found perfect. The unfortunate results which followed the use of frozen serum cannot have any effect upon the good work done in immunization in the past.

But few children, comparatively, objected to the test today, and the Concord scare, according to health department officials, will have no effect upon the city's school health program.

Working with Dr. Seconi today were Doctors Collins, Verde and Gallune.

Thirty-seven more students in Massachusetts have been poisoned by injections of the serum after diphtheria preventive had been frozen.

Twenty-five of the latest cases are in Bridgewater, and the others in Boston and in Holyoke. Like the nineteen students who were poisoned by the frozen serum at exclusive Concord Academy in Concord, all are suffering from sore eyes and swollen limbs and have been confined to dark rooms under the care of nurses.

Dr. Harold S. Birk, discoverer of the method of testing the immunizing effect of the serum which bears his name, investigated the Concord cases at Concord with Federal and State physicians. He is satisfied and will recover without serious effects and was happy to be able to say that the diphtheria serum being poisonous after freezing had been made without fatal results.

FIRST IN MILLION CASES.

The serum administered to the Boston children today, and which Dr. Birk and Dr. Hunt of the school board said on January 28 with instructions to put in a cold place. Dr. Hunt put it in an open window that night as the temperature dropped to 12 below zero. The next day the serum was administered.

"The serum," according to Dr. Schick, "is a composition of toxin and antitoxin. Freezing does not affect nor does the antitoxin act upon nothing but the poison to which it is administered.

"The effect of the poison on the nineteen Concord Concord Academy students will not last long—perhaps two weeks. We have ordered that the students be kept in darkened rooms for three weeks as a precaution.

For later developments in this case see later editions of the American.

DR. JOHN A. SECONI AND PUPIL

The inoculation was voluntary on the part of the children, few of whom refused to submit to the operation. The serum is regarded as one of the wonders of the present medical age.

CLAIM COOLIDGE NOMINATION ON FIRST BALLOT

Campaign Managers Declare They Are Sure of 866 of the 1,109 Delegates

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—President Coolidge's campaign managers openly claimed today that the President would be nominated at Cleveland on the first ballot.

They declare 866 of the 1,109 delegates to the convention are already "lined up" for Coolidge. This number is 311 votes more than the 555 necessary to nominate.

A survey made by an official prominent in Coolidge's campaign disclosed only ten States with a total of 233 delegates which cannot safely be counted on to "vote for Coolidge until nominated." These States are Arizona, Arkansas, California, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada and Wisconsin.

"Given some of these States are expected to throw their strength to Mr. Coolidge," it was declared, "but no claims are being laid to them because the primaries, yet to be held and certain political factors which need smoothing over."

Primaries are to be held in nineteen states between now and June 07. These, twelve—Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Vermont and West Virginia—are claimed by the Coolidge backers while the remaining seven—California, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Montana, Nebraska and Wisconsin—are in doubt.

TAFT STILL IN BED, BUT "IMPROVING"

Washington, Feb. 7.—Chief Justice Taft, who was ordered to bed yesterday by his physicians after suffering an attack of acute indigestion, was reported today as "improving."

It was said the Chief Justice would remain in bed today, but that his condition was not alarming.

FAMOUS WOMAN "RED" REBEL FOUND DEAD

"Most Dangerous Woman in Europe" Adored Revolution

London, Feb. 7.—Mme. Sorgue, the famous Continental Syndicalist, was found dead in bed in a London hotel today. She was here as a correspondent for a Belgian newspaper, seeking interviews with Premier MacDonald, Mr. Lloyd George and other notables.

Mme. Sorgue was a daughter of the French philosopher, Durand Degros, and her grandfather was the Russian General Kripkoff. In the course of her flaming career, she has been described as "Europe's most dangerous woman, the Stormy Petrel" and "Mme. Trouble."

She headed the women's hunger march to Tower Hill in 1913 and four years previously attracted notoriety as being the only journalist at the Lisbon International Peace Congress to remain seated on the entry of King Carlos. Few women if report is correct, ever had such remarkable adventures as Mme. Sorgue. She once delivered a hot revolutionary oration in Florence while looking down the rifle barrels of the gendarmes and was waylaid in France by a mob sworn to kill her. But she always escaped and never tired of declaring that she adored revolution.

FRIENDS SPEAK FOR MYLES STANDISH

"Captain Myles Standish could not speak for himself while he was alive but there are plenty of us to speak for him now."

Otis Little, No. 416 Marlborough street, in a letter to Homer Loring commissioner of administration and finance, thus protests the commissioner's plan to take away the statue of Standish on top of the monument at the State reservat on at Duxbury and to replace it with a bronze tablet. The statue was damaged by lightning two years ago.

"While no one pretends this statue is a work of art," Little admitted, "it is a symbol of the Pilgrims just the same, and as such it will be restored by our State."

ART MUSEUM WILLED FAMOUS PAINTING

Salem, Feb. 7.—A rare and valuable work of art, "The Nativity," said to be probably by Correggio, and dating back to the early 15th century, is bequeathed to the Boston Art Museum by the will of the late Anne Capen of Haverhill, just filed for probate here.

Antonio Allegri da Correggio, born in 1494, was of the Lombard school. He is said to have had no rival among the great painters in his mastery of the difficulties of foreshortening the management of light and shade, as distributed over vast space and affecting multitudes of figures.

GIVES UP FIGHT TO LIVE IN RAZED HOUSE

Mrs. Ella E. Taylor, sixty-nine years old, of No. 167 Summer street, Somerville, who last week refused to move although building wreckers had torn down half the house in which she lived, has capitulated. She has placed her furniture in storage and has taken a room on Highland avenue. Today will see the end of the house in which she lived.

Mrs. Taylor was notified to vacate by January 1. She claimed she could not find a house and stayed. John Locatelli, owner, who wanted to tear down the house so as to build a new 48-apartment structure, tried to persuade her. Then the workmen tore down half the house.

Sweeter Than an Angel—Like a Prayer—Is Your Girl Like "Chickie"?

THE STORY OF "CHICKIE" TO DATE

"Chickie" Bryce is the only child in the family. Her sister having died when she was quite young, the parents lavished all their affection on "Chickie." As the story opens "Chickie" is attending business college and Arthur Sontag, one of her classmates, takes her to a dance. She confides to Mary Blake, her chum, that the avenues of romance are opening to her.

"I'D like to be on that ship," Chickie said, with the eternal talk of seventeen to twenty. "I'd like to be going off somewhere far away."

"Some day I'm going."

"When?"

"Oh, in a year or two. They say there's great chances down in South America. After you get a good job. Chickie, why don't you save up and travel, too?"

Chickie's breast swelled. She said softly: "Jonathan doesn't want me to work."

Everyone Has a Kind Word to Say of the Page (Internal) Pile Treatment

Was About to Undergo Operation

Camden, N. J., 2817 Polk Ave.

Mr. E. R. Page.

Dear Sir:—You will have to excuse me for not answering you before, but I wanted to convince myself of the merit of your treatment before writing. Now in regards to the treatment I cannot praise it too highly. After 7 months of rectal itch, I was surprised how quickly your treatment worked. I tried several different kinds of treatments and I found them of little use. I was on the verge of going to a hospital for an operation when I saw your advertisement, so me be sure to convince you have to know what causes them.

It is now 6 months since I have taken your treatment and I have not had any trouble since. I recommend the treatment to all pile sufferers.

Wishing you the best of success I remain, gratefully yours,

HARRY SCHLECHTER.

E. R. Page Co., Marshall, Mich.

Mr. Dear Friends—I received your kind favor. One week today I have been in bed helpless. I feel for my children and feel fine. I am taking your medicine regularly and feel sure I would have been dead if I hadn't got some relief. I was bleeding so, and Oh! the agony. I cannot find words to express my thanks to you. I am feeling fine and do not know I ever had the piles.

A Sincere Friend,

MRS. M. L. BUCKNER,

OPERA HONORS MEMORY OF WILSON

Funeral March Played Preceding Presentation of "La Traviata"

A simple but impressive service in memory of former President Woodrow Wilson was held at the Boston Opera House by the Chicago Opera Company.

At the conclusion of the first act of Verdi's "La Traviata," while the audience stood, the 70-piece orchestra of the organization played Liszt's arrangement of Schubert's funeral march. In compliance with the wish of Mrs. Wilson, widow of the ex-President, there was no singing.

As the curtains were unfolded the audience noted a large full length portrait of Mr. Wilson on an easel draped with purple velvet. On stands at either side were single evergreen wreaths tied with bows of purple mallow. Palms and other plants were arranged in a semi-circle from the stand on which the portrait rested.

Claudia Muzio, with her charming personality, capable acting and wonderfully sweet voice, completely captured the audience in the principal feminine role of Violetta Valery. [illegible] the courtesan. She presented a regal figure in the first and third acts, the scenes of which were a salon in her own home and a ballroom of Flora Servoix's home.

Muzio does not resort to claptrap and exaggeration for effect. She appeals to the imagination by means of genuine ability. It is refreshing to witness and listen to a performance such as she gave in this tuneful opera.

Charles Hackett sang the role of the lover well but it might be advisable for him to attend a school of acting to perfect his histrionic ability. He is not convincing.

Giacomo Rimini handled the role of Alfred's father well.

The fascinating, sweet-voiced singer, Jose Mojica, who would make an ideal movie sheik had the eyes of the feminine contingent upon him much of the time in the role of Gaston. The stage settings, particularly the ballroom scene showing a marvelous deep blue sky through a trio of rounded windows, were very attractive, eliciting applause.

Old Time Dances Feature "Little Old New York"

SCENE FROM "LITTLE OLD NEW YORK"

Ye oldetime dances may have been all the poetry and grace of motion as compared with our jerky modern jazz steps, but it certainly is hard to swing into them after a lapse of a hundred years!

If you don't believe it, ask some of the comely young women who took part in the big colonial ballroom scene of "Little Old New York," the picturing of the famous stage play by Rida Johnson Young, which stars Marion Davies, and which is now showing at the Park Theatre.

NURSE STIFF KNEES.

Attired in their charming old-fashioned dresses, right merrily did they dip and curtsy in the dance called Roger de Coverly. And next day when the cameras were not grinding all of them were generously rubbing stiff knees and trying their best not to walk without a limp. The truth was that "ye oldetime dances" bring into play muscles which are seldom used, as the modern fox trots do not include low curtsys to one's partner.

The dance did not trouble Marion Davies, star of the production as she is used to taking daily setting up exercises, which include all sorts of twisting and bending, and which keep her as fit as any athlete. The ballroom scene with its stately setting, was indeed a picture.

MASSIVE CHANDELIERS.

From the great crystal chandeliers to the scarlet coated musicians in the gilded balcony, it was an exact reproduction of the ballroom of a century ago as found in the homes of New York's most exclusive old aristocratic families.

"Little Old New York" was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed. Sidney Olcott directed and Joseph Urban planned the settings which include most striking views of New York as it was a century ago.

BE PETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Motion Picture Notes

EVERYBODY WONDERED just why Alice Terry slipped off to Africa with husband Rex Ingram recently, to be soon followed by Ramon Novarro with a hurriedly packed valise. The dark mystery is unraveled. Rex is now engaged in putting Alice and Ramon through their paces in a new picture titled, "The Arab," adapted to the screen from Edgar Selwyn's stage play, which took Broadway by storm several seasons ago. The director and the famous heroine and hero of "Scaramouche" will journey tyo Paris soon for scenes there, but most of the film will be "shot" in Algiers, where Mr. Ingram can avail himself of the picturesque color and life of the East.

PARAMOUNT HAS chosen Bebe Daniels to support Rodolph Valentino in his last vehicle for the company, "Monsieur Beaucaire." She will be Princess de Bourbon - Conti, Beaucaire's early [illegible] sweetheart in France, a role to which she is exactly suited. The much-heralded Tarkington story is also to include Lois Wilson and Helene Chadwick in its cast, with Paulette Du Val, a French actress, journeying from Paris to play the colorful role of Mme. Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

PRO HOCKEY WILL BE POPULAR

Some few thousand fans are already set and waiting for the announcement of professional hockey at the local rink. Manager George Brown has almost assured the scribes that a couple of games are in the making.

Georg Owen, athlete of all athletes that ever came out of Harvard, really hated to think of giving up football. So the brilliant ace and former wearer of the Crimson colors today plays hockey with a regulation football headgear.

LACK OF TRAINING TO BLAME FOR U. S. HOCKEY DEFEAT

NO OLYMPIC COACH FOR ICE TEAM

By THOMAS J. [illegible]

[illegible] showing in the Olympic Winter sports championship of the hockey team. The team explained it is due to lack of practice, but experienced fans say Winter sports observers declared it was due to lack of consecutive training.

It is an indictment against the rally in different original preparations for the team on this side. The players were not gotten together until a fortnight or so of the sailing [illegible]

The [illegible] team appeared to look on their chances of beating Canada as rather hopeless, a sad spirit obviously, and dispatches throughout the hockey series told of lack of team and combination play and, worse still, of condition

Only the marked superiority of the style of play on this continent, as against that in [illegible] the United States do [illegible] and so well before these two the Canadians in the final match.

The Canadians, it must be said observed their outstanding victory because of conscientious preparations, and the United States seemingly only reaped the inevitable.

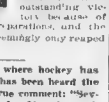
Irving Small

In this city, where hockey has a strong hold, has been heard the sarcastic and true comment: "Specialized coaches for purple track and field, swimming, gymnastics, but not one for hockey." Every sport should have a real coach, and long preparations for the Olympiad. It's so true, it's trite.

The fact that the United States finished fourth in the Olympic winter sports total point scoring, being headed by Norway, Finland and England, was not altogether surprising.

Norway and Finland take to winter sports as we do to baseball, and have a natural advantage in that respect.



Justin McCarthy

However, England getting third place by a point with 30 to 29 points for the United States was a surprise. Curling put the British in front, but two figured to do better with points in other events. However, the "doings" is the thing.

Maj.-Gen. Henry T. Allen, executive officer of the finance committee of the American Olympic Committee has announced that $35,000, or approximately only one-tenth of the total amount needed to send 350 athletes to the Olympics next Summer, has been received.

"Our campaign is beginning to gather momentum," he said, "and more than $7,000 came in today. As the figures show, however, we are still far short of our goal. The situation is undoubtedly due to the comparative remoteness of the games, and the general thought that there is ample time.

"Needless to say, we cannot wait until the last minute for money if we are to carry out the comprehensive plans we have made to insure 'American supremacy' in the contest. Indeed, we have heavy obligations that must be met almost [illegible]

He announced the finance committee "was appealing anew to our drive committeemen throughout the country to speed up."

The situation may become decided-ly more encouraging when contributions begin to flow more freely. Thirty-five thousand of a necessary $350,000 is a small portion for a campaign that has been on for about two months.

TUFTS BASKETBALL TEAM BEATS MAINE

The Tufts College basketball five handed the University of Maine quintet a 21 to 18 defeat at the God dard gymnasium Johnny Mahoney was the star performer. He scored 14 points for the Medford college.

In the first half the visitors obtained an 8 to 7 lead.

ASKS MONDT TO WRESTLE WITH ZANOVICH

The news that Paul Zanovich, the Lithuanian wrestling star, had recovered from the injuries suffered in his match with "Tootie" Mondt and that he had started light training set Promoter George V. Tuohey to getting the wires busy trying to locate Mondt, who is on a tour in the West, in an effort to bring this remarkable pair together again, in the near future in Mechanics Building.

Geo. V. Tuohey

"In all the years that I have been connected with the sport I never saw anything like that clash for action, speed, great wrestling, mixed with a devil-may-care desire to win at any cost," said Tuohey. "Although I knew in a general way that Zanovich was real good I had no idea that any man could have such liberties with Mondt as Zanovich did, and the fact that even the most biased followers of the sport stood in their seats from the start to the finish indicates what a wonderful show it must have been.

BARROW TURNS DOWN GRIFF'S OFFER

New York, Feb. 7.—An offer to manage Washington next season, made by Clark Griffith during the American League session in Boston, was turned down by Edward G. Barrow as business manager of the Yankees, Detail's of Griffith's offer were not revealed, but it is understood Barrow declined to accept because, as a stockholder and secretary of the Yankees in addition to his business, he desired to retain his connections in New York.

Washington is the only major league club without a pilot. Since Donie Bush was released, the names of Eddie Collins, White Sox second baseman, and Kid Gleason, ex-White Sox manager, and Jack Barry, former Red Sox manager, have been mentioned for the post.

It is intimated that Griffith, himself a veteran manager, may take over the active reins in addition to the duties as club president, if unable to find a capable field general.

The little fellows in Roxbury early in the season organized a basketball team, known today as the Roxbury Midgets, who claim the title in the 95-lb. pound class. Babe Celebrates 30th Birthday

Home-Run King to Pass Holiday Today on His Farm at Sudbury

By ARTHUR ROBINSON.

Long live the King—the Home Run King! Babe Ruth is thirty years old today.

Babe Ruth

And why shouldn't he be happy? He is the highest paid baseball player in the world, and the two million dollar baby of baseball. Ruth is the highest salaried baseball player in the world. He is the highest salaried baseball player that ever lived. He is the highest salaried baseball player that ever will live.

ANALYSIS.

How many young men in their twenties, in ANY line of business, have earned what Ruth earned in his twenties and now earns? How many DESERVE such a salary?

MONEY FOURS IN.

It is said that Ruth earned $1,000 in addition to his salary the year following his record breaking achievement of fifty nine home runs.

It is said that in the last three years he has earned a half million dollars through baseball, vaudeville, movies, writing and many other [illegible]

You may say that he is lucky. But it is also said that a man gets only what he is worth, no matter what his occupation and field of endeavor.

Consider, then, the case of Cy Young of the old Cleveland club of the National League. Later pitched for the Boston Red Sox. He was as great unto his generation of players as Ruth is to his. But Young's salary at most was only $4,500 a year.

Christy Mathewson's career was ending when Ruths was beginning. Christy too, was as great, and possibly greater, unto his generation than Ruth is to his. But Matty's top salary was only $12,500 a year.

RARE HAS GENIUS

Young and Matty lived in a day which is different from today in which Ruth now dazzles and thrills, but while there were some players who could do SOME things as well as they, there has never been anybody who could ONE thing as well or as often as Ruth.

And this is a faculty which the world is pleased to call GENIUS.

Ruth is more than a ball player than anybody before him. He must deserve it.

"Doing easily what others find difficult," said Henri Frederic Amiel, "is talent. Doing what is IMPOSSIBLE for talent is GENIUS."

Young and Mathewson and many other ball players had talent. Ruth has genius.

Long live the Home Run King!

M'CREARY READY TO MEET WILLS IF HE WINS OVER NORFOLK

HAMBONE TACKLES PUNCHER

By JACK CONWAY

Battling McCreary, world's colored light-heavyweight champion, will be prepared to tackle Harry Wills, world's colored heavyweight champion, if he wins over Kid Norfolk of New York in their ten-round bout at the Suffolk A. A.'s big all star show at Mechanics Building on tomorrow night.

"McCreary gave Wills one of the hardest battles of the latter's career five years ago," said Manager Alex McLean today. "At the time McCreary was only eighteen years of age and lacking in ring experience, while Wills was close to thirty, a veteran of more than 100 rugged battles.

"Wills also had a weight advantage of thirty-five pounds. Now that McCreary has gained more experience and has matured I feel he would be able to outset Wills. The latter cannot hope to go on winning forever and would find out this fact to his sorrow if he should agree to battle McCreary.

McLEAN SAYS McCREARY WILL KAYO NORFOLK

"I look for the Butler to stop Norfolk tomorrow night. This is not a rather broad statement when one considers that Norfolk recently trounced Battling Siki in New York.

"McCreary, though, easily won over Norfolk in this city last spring, since then the Butler has improved and will also enter the ring with all the confidence that goes with a championship.

Hambone Kelly, South Boston kayo king, will probably receive a bout with Mike McTigue for the world's light-heavyweight title, if he wins over Irish Jim Montgomery in another one of the ten-round bouts at the Suffolk Club's show. If Hambone has displayed all of his old hitting power in his workouts and is confident he will be able to upset the science and hard hitting Montgomery. The latter gave Johnny Wilson a stirring ten-round battle at Scranton, Pa., last Summer.

There is considerable interest in the appearance of Jack Sharkey of this city, New heavyweight sensation, against Battling Hance of Quincy in another bout. Those who saw Sharkey knock out Billy Madden of Lynn in a round at the Elks show were greatly impressed by his ring possibilities. Sharkey has a deadly left hook as well as a mighty right-hand sock. There are few youthful heavyweights who can use a left hand as well as Sharkey.

Harry Kelly in plotting Battling Hance and he says that the Quincy youth will give Sharkey a surprise

Whitey Allen of Hyde Park, who gained fame by engaging in a couple of sensational bouts with Eddie Record, will toss punches at Neddy Flanagan of Malden in the fourth ten rounder

The fans are greatly interested in this heavyweight tournament judging from the record demand for reservations at the Suffolk Club's of fice

Boston wrestling fans will be glad to see George Kotsonaros, Greek champion, in action against Jack Albright in a finish wrestling bout at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House tonight. Kotsonaros is one of the fastest and more finished wrestlers this writer has ever seen in action

* * *

KID WILLIAMS BEATS YOUNG MONTREAL

Providence, R. I., Feb. 6—Young Montreal lost a twelve-round bout at the National A. C., Marieville to Kid Williams of Baltimore.

Williams was in good form and used his left to great advantage throughout the bout. Montreal took only four rounds and one of them was on the border line.

In the ten-round semi-final between Young Eddy and Young Kansas, Eddy quit after five rounds because of sudden sickness. Eddy had the affair his own way until the last of the fourth when body punches at close range sent him reeling several times. Two severe left jabs to Eddy's stomach in the fifth did the trick and made him stop.

Rose Defeats Seeback

Bob Rose defeated Charlie Seeback, 50 to 29, in the three-cushion billiard championship at the State Theatre Club. Rose set up a new record for the tournament when he ran out in 62 innings. He also tied the high run record of seven.

SWEEPSTAKES MATCH AT PORTLAND TODAY

Portland, Me., Feb. 7.—The fast pacers which met last week at Lawrence will perform on the speedway at this city this afternoon in a sweepstakes match of $200 a side, the winner to take all

There is a lot of interest taken, owing to the fact that last week's contest was declared no race after five heats had been raced; Carl C. and Carter Jane won two heats each and Robert M. one.

On account of darkness, and by mutual consent, the event was declared no contest

Although Carter Jane will not be in today's sweepstake the event promises to be a humdinger for Gale Quartz and Calgary Fuel will take the word along with Carl C. and Robert M.

Wilvena, the fast Portland mare, is booked to meet Carter Jane in a match race of $250 a side. All of the events are quarter-mile dashes, best three in five.

A large delegation of light harness racing fans from Boston, Lawrence, Haverhill and Lowell are on hand to witness the sport.

Jack Conway Picks Kotsonaros to Win Battle

Jack Conway, holder of the world's record for picking winners, will try to continue his amazing run of winning selections tonight. The Boston American's expert hands out his dope on the big wrestling card at the Grand Opera House.

"You will see the new Kotsonaros in action against Albright," says Jack. "The Greek champion has always been the world's leading light-heavyweight. Now that he has put on twenty extra pounds he should be able to conquer most of our noble heavyweights. Kotsonaros will resume activities upon the mat this p. m. when he tackles Jack Albright, a seasoned performer. I am picking Kotsonaros to win.

"The Bozines-Toolos bout is a toss-up. While we are stringing along with Rudy to defeat Dutcher."

Jack has named twenty-one winners out of a possible twenty-three this year.

Terry Signs With Giants

New York Feb. 7.—William H. Terry, infielder returned his signed contract to the Giants. Terry came to the Giants from Toledo last season.

PICK LOUGHRAN TO WIN OVER WILSON

Tommy Loughran

Loughran, a youth of twenty-two years, has proved one of the wonders of the ring game. He has twice defeated Harry Greb of Pittsburgh. He won the decision at Philadelphia a year ago last Summer, scoring a knockdown in the first frame. The second bout was staged in Boston last Fall after Greb won the world's middleweight championship from Johnny Wilson. The decision went to Loughran after a thrilling ten-round engagement.

Loughran also disposed of Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, twice last summer

The Philadelphian is a good boxer but relies chiefly upon his deadly punching power to gain a victory. He plans to set a terrific pace from the bell on Tuesday and is confident he will win by a knockout inside of five rounds

Wilson is training at Summit, N. J. He reports he is in fine condition. He will need to be in top shape to avoid receiving a walloping at the hands of Loughran

The fact that Loughran comes here a winner has tended to create new interest in this bout. Although Wilson has lived in Boston for years he is a stranger to the fans of this city and of New England generally. He will appear eager to see him defeated. And Loughran the man who put the skids under Greb and McTigue, appears to have the ability to accomplish the result.

HYDE PARK FIVE TO PLAY WITH NORWOOD

The Hyde Park A. A and Norwood Town team will play the second game of their basketball series tomorrow night at Waver Hall Park.

Norwood has the edge by virtue of a victory in the first tussle between the two towns, records have counted for little.

Norwood will have in its lineup Johnson, Kilbridge and Cochrane of the Whirlwinds; Carroll of Boston College, and Costa of Bridgewater.

KOTSONAROS IN BATTLE WITH ALBRIGHT

By RINGSIDE

George Kotsonaros, Greek heavyweight wrestling champion, will be in the ring again tonight when he clashes with Jack Albright, the man with a thousand holds, in a finish match of best two falls out of three, at the Old Howard's show at the Grand Opera House.

Kotsonaros recently returned to Boston after a triumphant tour which carried him through the Southwest and California. Prior to starting on his tour, Kotsonaros spent three months on his ranch at Montana. He gained twenty pounds during his layoff. The result is that he now scales close to 195 pounds and is ready to tackle the world's leading mat artists.

The Greek champion has always been popular in Boston as a result of his ruzzed contests here with Strangler Lewis, Stanley Zbyszko, John Pesek and George Calza. Now that Kotsonaros is heavier than ever he will be able to give even a better account of himself.

The Greek title holder will experience some real opposition tonight. Albright is a finished wrestler and is of the opinion he will be able to pin Kotsonaros' shoulders to the mat.

The winner of tonight's contest has been promised a match with Strangler Lewis, the contest to be staged at the Grand Opera House on next Thursday night. With such a plum to strive for, the fans are sure to witness a contest crowded with action.

There will also be a strong preliminary card. Savage Tootos, one of the roughest Greek wrestlers who has ever shown in this city, will meet Jack Bozinis, another Greek star, in the semi-final. This tussle will also be to a finish. Incidentally the winner of this bout will hurl a challenge at Kotsonaros.

Bill Rudy and Frank Dutcher will furnish the excitement in another finish contest.

BOSTON WILL HAVE "PRO" HOCKEY TEAM

Montreal, Feb. 7—Boston is assured a place in the proposed new International Professional Ice Hockey League, says Charles F. Adams, director of the Boston Arena, here to confer with Canadian officials

The league expects to go under way next season with two American cities, New York and Boston, and four Canadian cities represented Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton probably will represent the Dominion.

There is a possibility that it will be a six eight club circuit with Pittsburgh and Cleveland represented.

ROWING ASSOCIATION PLANS BIG REGATTA

A monster amateur rowing carnival on the Charles River during the Elks celebration in this city, July 7-12 was suggested at the meeting of the New England Amateur Rowing Association at the Union B. C.

A committee will call on Mayor Curley to obtain his sanction for such an event. It was voted also to stage the annual July 4 regatta.

The following officers were elected: Dr. George B. Morgan, president; Charles Bertram, vice president; James P. Fox secretary and John J. Corrigan, treasurer

VAL PICINICH SIGNS WITH THE RED SOX

Vale Picinich, Red Sox catcher, called at the Fenway Park offices, signed his contract for 1924 and went away happy.

The signed contracts of Howard Shanks and Phil Todt came in earlier in the week, and both declared themselves perfectly satisfied with their salaries.

The contracts were sent out only last week and the early returns indicate that Bob Quinn will not have any serious trouble in signing up his men

Centre's Offer for Coach Does Not Lure "Bo"

Shreveport, La., Feb. 7.—"Bo" McMillin, ex-Centre College football star and now coach at Centenary College, will not become coach at Centre under conditions proposed by the Centre athletic authorities.

"Although my conference with Centre officials did not reach the stage where a salary offer was made," he said, "certain conditions were suggested should I accept the job, which I could not agree to."

One of the conditions was that his work would begin this year, although his contract with Centenary does not expire until the end of 1924.

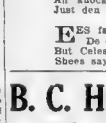
B. C. HIGH IN BID TO WIN BIG SCHOOLBOY MEET

By FRED C. LANE

Medford, Brookline Newton, Lynn English High and other leading scholastic track teams can look to their laurels on February 23, when all will compete in the Huntington Interscholastic meet. Boston College High, which up to this year had a fair track team, will be in the thickest of the fight, for first honors in this annual schoolboy event.



Jack Heaphy.

Since Coach Jack Heaphy has taken a hand in training the soft shoe runners along with the able assistance of Jake Driscoll, the team has reached such heights that today they are considered one of the leading schoolboy organizations in Greater Boston.

Victories over Brookline, Commerce and Somerville to date is the cause for this statement. All three teams mentioned have excellent teams, yet their combined forces were unable to stem the tide of the B. C. High victory.

In his short career at the St. James Street School Coach Heaphy has uncovered what looks like the best prospect of the year in Leon Cadreau. Up to this season this lad was unheard of. In the four meets that B. C. High has run, this young ster won the short dash event against the best runners of Brookline, Commerce, Somerville and Lynn English.

McGraw, Curley and Joe Swan have made advanced strides as shot putters and bid fair to break into the limelight in the near future. More boys are taking part in track sports this Winter at B. C. than ever before.

This perhaps accounts for the many fine prospects that have been uncovered in the short space of two months. Coach Heaphy is grooming his lads carefully for the Huntington meet. Practice is held daily in the local gym which, when sandwiched in with an occasional final meet, accounts for the fine condition of the lads.

Bill Deegan is another flyer who shows traits of becoming something other than a color bearer in the dash. A little more practise on his starting will find him a wooster breaker. Joe McCabe is the best the squad has to offer in the 300-yard run. In addition to looking good in the dash he is well qualified to compete in the broad jump and hurdles. It is said that McCabe is at his best in the hurdle event but this will be better brought out when he toes the mark with the best schoolboys in New England a fortnight hence.

Jack Ryder, track coach at Boston College, thinks that Captain Dooley is the best 600-yard runner competing as a schoolboy today. He has led large fields to the tape over this distance in every meet this year and stands out as the logical winner of the Huntington 600-yard race.

Reardon, Corcoran and Kelley make up B. C. High's entry in the 1000-yard run. All are fair and look good enough to hold their own with the best running at this distance in Boston.

CUB PITCHING SQUAD STARTS WORK FEB. 6

Chicago, Feb. 7.—Manager Killifer of the Cubs announces that thirteen pitchers will be taken on the Spring training trip to the Coast Island [illegible]. The first squad of players will start a week from Saturday.

In addition to the daily pitching work, the men will be required to take extended mountain hikes.

STAR ATHLETES IN LEGION GAMES

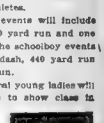
The American Legion athletic meet, to be held by the department of Massachusetts, on Washington's Birthday, should be a hummer. Many of the best runners in the East have already sent their entries to Charles F. Gorman, athletic director of the local headquarters.

William A. Gaston

The meet will be staged at the East Armory on East Newton street, South End, on the afternoon of February 12, and will be opened to all registered athletes.

The handicap events will include 50 yard dash, 880 yard run and one mile run, while the schoolboy events include 50 yard dash, 440 yard run and 1,000 yard run.

Many of the local young ladies will get their chance to show class in the special feature events for girls wishing to compete. There will be girls' relay races and fifty-yard dash events.



Jake Driscoll

The Massachusetts Legion mile run, invitation, should draw a good entry list of starters, while the Colonel William A. Gaston trophy invitation race will be another feature attraction. This event is a distance of 600 yards, which means that Jake Driscoll should be on hand.

Relay races for all colleges, high schools and athletic clubs will finish out the afternoon's fun

Entries for the different events close on February 15, with Charles F. Gorman, athletic director, department of Massachusetts, the American Legion, Room 158, State House, Boston.

MELROSE WINS FROM ANDOVER AT HOCKEY

Andover, Feb. 7.—In one of the fastest games of hockey ever played on a local rink Melrose High defeated Phillips Academy team 1 to 0.

Three 15 minute periods of hard playing failed to record a single tally for either side.

Two extra periods of five minutes followed with similar results.

Finally in an added "sudden death" session, Sanford of Melrose tore loose from the scrimmage in front of the Andover goal posts and sent through the lone score in just nine minutes of play.

Throughout the 64 minutes of play every second counted for interest.

Milliken, Quarrier and Vaughn presented a formidable defense for the Andover team.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

In the South, Feb. 7—John D. Rockefeller once remarked to me, with a chuckle, that he made his first real money when a very young lad by hatching a number of young turkeys and letting them hustle for their food. "It was all profit to me," he added, his weather-beaten countenance lighting up at the recollection after more than seventy years.

I commend this incident to many people and many places including Jacksonville. Jacksonville, with every facility at hand, doesn't raise its own poultry or eggs but ships them in galore from Tennessee and other States.

This money, which runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars, could be kept at home

Our wheat farmers of the Northwest have been undergoing hard sledding. They haven't been able to earn a living, many of them.

Yet it is authoritatively recorded that large numbers of them do not take the trouble to cultivate even the tiniest of vegetable gardens or to raise enough poultry to keep their own tables going.

Jacksonville and vicinity are similarly thriftless, I learn. Foodstuffs, which could easily be grown in and around Jacksonville, are not grown. Agricultural opportunities have not been taken advantage of.

It should be added that progress is made in attracting new industries to the city, the enterprise of the city's wide-awake Chamber of Commerce and its bustling Mayor, John Alsop.

Henry Ford has arranged to establish a huge assembling plant on the waterfront. Its capacity, I am told, will be 300 cars a day. This move by the shrewd Ford people is expected to spur other large concerns to look into the advantages of Jacksonville.

Savannah has been nosed out of first place as the naval stores centre of the world. Jacksonville has likewise been coming to the front as a shipbuilding centre, as the greatest oil and gasoline distributing point in the South, as the second largest pine lumber shipping point in the world, in wood manufacturing, etc.

The Jacksonville Journal, the city's growing and prosperous afternoon newspaper, says, in course of a lengthy report:

"Jacksonville has a great future. It must and will grow but should it not have additional efforts towards retaining more of the tourists who pass through here each Winter on their way to Southern points.

"These were among the suggestions made by a representative group of business leaders of Jacksonville who gathered at the Chamber of Commerce to hear B. C. Forbes, one of the great financial authorities and writers of the day, on Jacksonville and its opportunities for the future.

"Here are some of the interesting ideas which the noted writer on finance handed in his list which was enthusiastically received:

"The boulevard to the beaches is a big asset and should be exploited to the utmost.

"The golf course is a splendid improvement and another would be another good move.

"Jacksonville is a big distributing centre, but it should be something more and should capitalize on its attractiveness.

"Next to having the goods, it is most important to let other people know you have them, as a leaf out of California's book.

"Don't hide your light under a bushel. Let the world know what Jacksonville has to make it the lightful place to spend a vacation.

"Remember that agricultural wealth is basic. It comes from nobody, and is new all the way through. Develop agriculture to the utmost.

"Above all, do not gain your prominence, wealth and growth as the metropolis of this part of the country at the expense of your Southern neighbors. Co-operate."

Locomotive Issues Establish New Highs in Strong New York Stock Market

U. S. STEEL UP TO NEW TOP FOR YEAR

United States Steel advanced to a new high for the year in a strong New York stock market. American Locomotive and Baldwin also established new tops.

Metals were strong. Crucible was up nearly 2. Studebaker added a point. Tarkion was off 3.

Considerable profit-taking developed during the morning, particularly among the oils and specialties, giving the market an irregular appearance in the early afternoon.

Operations for the advance were on a small scale, however, in various issues of the list. American Ice, Tidewater Oil and Ohio Elevator being lifted to new high prices for the year.

Portland Tobacco, which has been heavily oversold, rallied 5 points.

American Tobacco, American Express, Davison Chemical and Union Bag and Paper were among the new high stocks to sell a point or more above yesterday's final prices.

Brooklyn Edison broke 3 points on the announcement of a split-up.

Du Pont, General Electric, Corn Products, Pacific Oil, Standard Oil of California and Houston Oil developed a point or more.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent.

Irregularity Prevails in Big Bond Market

Irregularity marked the course of New York bond prices. Fractional declines took place in some of the leading railroad issues, such as Atchison General 4s, while a number of speculative bonds gained ground. Seaboard adjustment 5s, St. Paul and St. Louis Southwestern issues were higher.

Heavy buying of Liberty bonds was encountered on the second day of the new campaign, a total of $100,000 to $500,000 changing hands, presumably for British account.

Selling of bonds of the Doheny Oil Companies again was in evidence as a result of the expected dissolution of the new company organized to operate the California properties.

Walworth at New High Is Feature in Boston

Walworth was up more than a point to a new 1924 high, and was a feature of trading on the Boston Stock Exchange. Boston & Maine was also added a point. Commonwealth Power made its debut at 55, then sold ½ higher.

Most changes were fractional

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1812, of Charles Dickens, one of the masters of English story writing. His work did much to abolish abuses in England. "Bleak House" and "Nicholas Nickleby" were notable examples.

The Beautiful, but Bluntly Honest Story of a Boston Girl

By ELENORE MEHERIN

Seething Life of a Lovely Boston Girl of This Strange Today

whiz! you're not ready to settle down yet, are you? Say, I wouldn't think of it, if I were you, for about five or ten years."

It was like a refusal—as though she has offered herself and he had turned her down.

No Word From Arthur

The next morning those words were the first things she remembered. They returned to her with a pang; they whispered in her ear until she grew hot with shame.

But they went to the movies the same as usual. At the door he stopped and kissed her. It softened every thing.

Then a terrible thing happened. A week went by, and two, and he didn't phone, or come or send a single word.

She went to Mary's one Saturday afternoon. She went past the stunted cottonwood, up the neglected lawn that ran along the side of the Blake house, to the kitchen door.

Little Tommy Blake came down the steps, Mary after him, crying in dignantly: "Oh, you wait, you little villain! You just wait, Tommy Blake! I'm going right up to mother!"

Tommy, crouched behind a post in the yard, stuck his thumbs to his nose and wagged all ten fingers yelling "Ge-e! Ain't you grand, thoughy! Mother! Say, who do you mean Mommer?"

Mary waved her hand, saying with a gulp: "How would you like that Chickie? And I spent a whole hour decorating that cake!" She pointed to the table.

There was a cake with little finger marks in the soft chocolate icing, with big gouges where the nuts had been hurriedly scooped out.

Chickie's heart was too sore for a trifle like that.

"What do you care?" she said carelessly. "You won't have to bake for them all your life."

"Oh, I won't! Well, how do you know? Just because you're going to marry Arthur Soning you think I won't have to stick right on here?"

Her Heart Broken

Don't be an idiot, Mary. I would not think of marriage, even with Arthur!"

Mary looked at her mystified whispering excitedly. "What's happened? Heavens!"

Chickie suddenly wished to leave—to be alone. Mary was too sharp. Mary might get the whole thing out of her. So Mary sent out the cakes as was their Saturday custom. Then sat down.

"I won't dream of getting married," Chickie said with great air "until Arthur's had a chance to save As long as I've gone to business college I might as well work."

"Sure," Mary agreed. "You won't catch me tying myself down at eighteen. I'm thankful for one thing. I know what marriage means!"

They moved their chairs a little closer together. They hunched their elbows.

The screen door banged.

"Ha, ha!" Tammy, chewing a great wad of gum, his eyes half lost in their setting of freckles, sidled over to the table. He made a funny grimace, twisting his shoulders at Chickie.

She paid no attention. He flipped his hat into the air, caught it on one finger.

"Hahaha! Just saw something! Just saw yer feller at Revere Beach, Chickie! Ho! Saw him walkin' along with Dolly Bacon!"

She grew all cold inside—and then all wild with heat.

Mary jumped up and grabbed Tommy by the coat. "Oh! You little vixen! You better run!"

But she didn't say a word to Chickie.

Arthur never phoned again.

One day Chickie met him on State street. Chickie couldn't hear the sight of her own eyes—so gray and dark—rimmed with black. They made her think of whispered things She turned from them, holding in tears. He grinned was gone. Even when she stood with Jonathan.

He took her face one night and, raised it in his great palms searching it hungrily. "What's happened to all the little sunbeams, Chickie—"

She shut her eyes quickly, pulling his hands away. "Never you be so serious, cutie-cute——"

He drew her to him, chuckling. "Well, you got over it very old dad, haven't you?"

She cried. And then she told him. And how her heart was broken.

He shouldn't have laughed as his arms tightened. But he did. She rushed from him into her room, slamming the door.

Gradually her heart grew together—almost unmarked her, it healed so quickly. The glow came back to the sun and even the moon regained its silver beauty.

Only now and then, when she passed that imp of a Tommy Blake, and he'd shrill out, "Aw, say, Chickie—how's yer folks?" or if she fell a hot knife flashing through her.

Able to Banter About It

In a few months she could even banter about it. When Mary teased "Gosh! but didn't you have th' case on Arthur Soning, though? Remember her?" Chickie would lose her head with debonair lilt and whistle lightly.

Well, you know, when one is sweet sixteen——"

Yet, deep in her mind was a loitering, sweet regret as of something gentle and holy that was gone and would never be quite so perfectly experienced again—the flushing deep astonishment of love when it is new. A woman remembers her first emotion so.

But she no longer dreamed of a bungalow with a garden—and sweet—

She began to look forward with frightened eagerness to work—to the moment when she would leave the gentle quiet of Jonathan's little yellow cottage and go down town to a business office—a tremendous thing in the life of a girl not yet 18.

At the school the girls were all on fire with questions. What kind of a job would they get? Suppose they should forget everything?

That happened sometimes. Old graduates told fearsome experiences. Edna Stickney, for instance. She had three bosses. One of them talked so rapidly his own breath couldn't keep up with him—but heaven help her if she got so much as a comma twisted! Tales like that sent them into attacks of apprehension.

Chickie got a place in a big brokerage office on State Street. The morning trembled when she was to go. Jennie bustled about the kitchen, red, talking to herself. She insisted on packing a lunch that Chickie didn't want.

Chickie doubled it up hard and stuck it in her purse. Jennie protested. Chickie was almost crying. "Oh, mother! Do you want me to carry a paper lunch bag on the car? Nobody does that!"

Then a terrible thing happened—a week went by and he didn't phone

Jonathan, brushing her suit, whistled au though she were a child. "There Nervous? Shucks! Nothing to fear!" It was his own big hand—here hers that shook.

Nothing terrible about that first day. No woman-eating man, volleying out wild fire dictation—just a nice mild fellow, like anybody's brother or son, took her into a little glassed in corner of the big square room and handed her some printed slips with banks where she was to type. . . .

"You'll be careful, Miss Bryce, to get the names correctly, won't you?"

And he hoped she'd like the place—and was sure the other girls would help her.

There were four of them in the room, and one that the others called Janina" flashed out as though made of flames. She was a young Pole dark with black hair drawn Grecian fashion to the nape of her neck. She had pale olive skin—a too prominent nose and red, clean cut lips, the upper one short, curling. Striking—even handsome in a hard, glittering way. Chickie was drawn by the extraordinary brilliance of the girl's dark eyes.

The First Day

Their glances met and the dark one smiled. It made her whole face intensely vivid as though suddenly struck with light.

That very first noon when Chickie came back from lunch, Janina met her in the dressing room. She took off her hat and, with prima donna nonchalance dropped it on the waste basket. She began combing her black hair.

Then she noticed Chickie. "This you first job?"

Chickie answered stiffly: "Yes, it is."

Chickie had no better sense than to answer. "Eighteen, almost."

Then Janina, extremely busy with her lip stick, laughed: "Eighteen! Poor, proud and pure, I take it!"

Oh!" Chickie gasped.

Janina's eyes crinkled with amusement. Remember, little one," she cautioned; "poor, proud and pure is always lonesome."

Chickie turned scarlet.

She had chiefly recovered from the shock of this first meeting—she was still guessing at the dark, guilty meaning of Janina's words when the young Pole all but twisted the gayety out of Chickie's heart.

It was an afternoon toward the end of her second week. The window of the dressing room looked down over office buildings and far out even to the clear blue of the sky. Chickie was idling here a moment.

In one office a girl came in, took off her hat. . . . Then the girl was sitting at a desk in the corner. . . . A man entered. He sat on the edge of the desk. The two began to talk. How nice and friendly Chickie thought. Pleasant to be working. Just then Janina opened the door—leaned over Chickie's shoulder. Just then, too, the man gripped the girl's hand. They were both laughing.

"Cozy, eh! Wonder how Mrs. Turner would like that?" Janina hissed.

"Mrs. Turner? Why should she care?" Chickie asked inwardly.

"She shouldn't! But wives are all stupid! They do care!"

"Oh—you mean that man is married?"

"Ha ha! And has three kids to boot!"

"Oh—! Oh, isn't it awful——"

Janina's lips curled. "What's awful about it? A man's still a man if he isn't he, for all that the marriage vows tries to turn him into a dumb beast. He has eyes, still, and a heart. Fudge! The nicest men are all married!"

Chickie's eyes burned—she felt a curious heat rushing up to her neck.

"You mean they all do [illegible] that"

Janina's mouth raised in grin. Nice [illegible] out of ten! Official statistics!"

Chickie felt a sudden, hard aversion for this mocking sinner Janina. She said, angrily, "I don't believe it! I don't believe it!"

But the thought went into her heart and weighed there heavy and cold like a stone.

Sophistication

Yet Janina's wisdom—Janina's immense sophistication drew her like a magnet—like a hunger at once repellent and irresistible. She was a [illegible] woman flushed and vain from others of Janina following.

The girls in the office had a habit of running into the dressing room for a little chat or a secret cigarette. Here Janina held court. She gave out vivid advice about men, about life, about love. She was committed and cynical as a kind of Delphic oracle.

ABOUT YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza

Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company

THE desire to be beautiful and to please instinctive with every [illegible] woman. Now and then a woman smiles a smile of [illegible] when the subject of beauty culture is introduced—a smile that would seem to denote it as utterly trivial.

Yet the chances are that every woman is unconsciously giving [illegible] a dram of her mind. She would [illegible] and [illegible] and loves [illegible] and admiration [illegible] effectually to realize [illegible] it is [illegible] undeniable [illegible] that [illegible] feminine beauty. He admires [illegible] and seeks it in the woman who [illegible] his life.

It is not for nothing that wise old Mother Nature has planned this [illegible] to be beautiful in woman and corresponding admiration of [illegible] beauty in man.

Beauty, indeed, is but the perfect [illegible] of perfect health, [illegible] that are played [illegible] the woman who [illegible] and pervious to disease unconsciously by cultivating [illegible] health and the [illegible] which is [illegible] pressed by her poise and vivacity.

A slim waist always has been and still is considered a mark of beauty. This need not mean a wasp-like waist, but just the slim rounded symmetry that normal health brings. And this small waist involves keeping the abdomen and stomach within symmetrical measurements.

The following exercise should reduce the size of your waist, your stomach and your abdomen by stirring the blood to vigorous activity and so burning away superfluous fat and reducing it to muscle. For the same reason, it will tend to strengthen the muscles of your abdomen, stomach and waist, and so enable you to slim [illegible] waists and the body promptly and completely.

Lie face downward on a pillow or your bed. Raise your feet and let the arms [illegible] reach backward with your arms until you grasp your ankles. Now in this position rock backward and forward [illegible] your face, then your back and also from side to side.

The exercise is strenuous and should be tried at first only for a half minute. But it will seem easier as your muscles grow stronger, until in time you will find it really fun to practice it for two or three moments each day.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

A COMPANY has been formed recently for the sole purpose of issuing alimony insurance. This means that a man will now be able to get married and let the corporation do the worrying.

HE will be able to devote his entire time to love and not have to bother about the business end of the marriage.

THIS insurance company has two lawyers. One to ask your wife how much she wants and another to tell her how much she'll get.

IT'S wonderful to have some insurance company at last that you don't have to die to enjoy.

ALL you have to do is to furnish them with proof that you've quarreled. This is easy. Just take them a couple of black eyes and a busted nose.

IF this isn't enough proof, then you can go home for a few minutes and come back with a broken jaw.

THE thought of alimony has kept more men from getting married than marriage itself.

LOVE is a marvelous thing. You marry some stranger, live together awhile, and then this same stranger has you put in jail for not dividing your salary with her.

IT would be different if you knew each other, but it's hard to get acquainted before you're married, and afterwards it's impossible.

IT'S getting so that when a man goes to the altar nowadays he has a summons in one hand and a cash register in the other.

YOU can't even kiss the bride without her lawyer's permission.

THIS new corporation may be all right, but what we need is some kind of company which will insure a man against ever being a groom.

SAY A HELPFUL WORD TO THOSE WHO ARE IN DIFFICULTIES

Ever try to inspire another? Never have?

Then you do not know what joy can come from a knowledge of a person helped through your own life or influence.

You have allowed the other fellow to go his own way without words from you, either for or against his way of doing.

If you were told a hard luck story, you talked in a woe-begone manner instead of in a hopeful spirit—instead of trying to propose to him some course which might lead back to the road of happiness.

You do hard thinking for yourself: is it not worth while to expend a little energy and effort to assist a man really in need of helpful thinking?

The man on the downward slide ceases to think in a practical way, for he is so busy trying to stand on his feet that he cannot look around for opportunities to further his ambitions.

And this is the very place where you should come in.

Not to take his business and his prestige away from him, but to help him over the hard stretch physically, mentally and inspirationally.

To prevent nails from splitting wood, blunt the points by tapping the ends lightly with a hammer while resting the heads on a piece of iron. Treated in this manner the nail, when driven, pushes the wood fibre before it, preventing splitting, whereas the sharp pointed nail pushes the fibre of the wood to the sides, causing a tendency to split.

"What right are his who dare not strike for them."

"In schools and colleges, on fleet and army, discipline means success and anarchy ruin."

Good order is necessary for success in every line Froude notes in "Short Studies."

"It is in general most profitable to reckon up defects than to boast our attainments."

We learn more from studying our shortcomings than from admiring our virtues, Carlyle declares in "Signs of the Times."

"I am the master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul."

Every man is responsible for his own acts, William E. Henley asserts in "Echoes."

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

"THE book is realistic (so the critics all agreed), its words in style artistic flow, it's just the thing we need." Like hot cakes it kept selling and a million maidens read the story it was telling, and a billion tears were shed. It had a thrilling hero and a pippin of a plot, a villain as mean as Nero and a weak but harmless pet. It told just how the hero sought his lady's love and trust, while villain co'd as zero fought to drag her in the dust. It gave eleven pages to her lovely eyes and hair, the stuff that all the ages through has been the bard's despair. And then it tried depicting how the handsome hero wooed; it's very safe predicting now all old ways are tabooed. At last, to make things snappier, the villain faded out; no pair were ever happier than those that book's about. The book is optimistic and the critics all agreed it's also realistic and it's good for you and me. It's full of love and laughter and his kisses and her eyes, how they lived glad ever after, and that's what the public buys.

RADIO AMERICAN

TO BROADCAST FROM OPERA HOUSE IN MIDNIGHT SHOW FROM WNAC

"Boris Godounov" on the Radio From Station WNAC for the Fans Tonight

The opera "Boris Godounov" will be broadcast tonight from the Shubert-Boston Opera House through WNAC, the Shepard Stores station.

The opera will be sung in Italian. The following synopsis will assist the listener to follow the action while hearing the opera:

PROLOGUE.

Scene 1. Prince Chouisky leads boyards (Russian noblemen) and a mass of people into the monastery of Novedievitchi, near Moscow; the people are excited, and, forced by the chief of police, entreat Godounov to become their Tsar.

Scene 2. As bells peal and the people are kneeling, a procession enters, with Tsar Godounov at their head. He retires to the palace.

ACT I.

Scene 1. A chronicler-monk, Pimenn, writes in his monastery cell. In a corner, Gregori, a young monk, awakes and tells Pimenn of a dream. To Gregori, Pimenn speaks of his past life, how he fought for the late Tsar, Ivan, how Ivan's son, who would now be Gregori's age, had he not been murdered, would be the real Tsar. Gregori swears to avenge the unfortunate child.

Scene 2. An inn on the Lithuanian frontier. Gregori, the future bogus Dimitri, having escaped from the monastery with two vagabond monks, Varlaam and Missail, arrives; his companions drink. Gregori inquires of the inn-keeper the way to Lithuania. But now the bailiff comes with an order for the arrest of Gregori: as none can read, however, Gregori takes the paper, and cunningly substitutes the description of Vaariam. The latter, snatching the sheet, at length deciphers it, thus revealing the trick. Gregori, brandishing a knife, escapes from the window; the others chase him.

ACT II.

Scene 1.—Tsar Godounov, with his children, Xenie and Theodore, is in his apartment within the Kremlin wall. He is perturbed and haunted by remorse. He is notified that Chouisky and other noblemen had held the night before, a secret assembly. As the Prince enters, Godounov insults him; but Chouisky reassures him of his fidelity, giving as proof the fact that he has come to tell Godounov of an impostor, who, supported by the King of Poland, the Pope, and many noblemen, claims to be the Tsar, under the name of Dimitri (the name of Ivan's dead son). Boris downcast, is tormented wherever he goes, by the shadow of the murdered child.

ACT III.

Scene 1.—Castle of Sandomire, Poland. Marina is being dressed for a ball by her maid; her friends sing her beauty. Her heart overflows as she fancies herself Tsarina, through her lover, the false Dimitri, aided by the Polish nobleman and their King. Rangoni, her Jesuit adviser, comes exhorting her to marry Dimitri and to bank Poland and the Catholic religion for the throne.

Scene 2.—Dimitri awaits Marina in the gardens of the castle. Rengoni enters conveying the message that Marina loves him and will join him soon. Dimitri is skeptical; but Rangoni reassures him and declares eternal friendship. At length Marina appears and with taut inspires her lover to assert his rights, and to snatch the Russian throne, her own ambitious love seeing in him the only future Tsar.

ACT IV.

Scene 1.—A clearing in the Kromy forest. The boyard Kroutchow, tied, with his clothes torn, hatless, is maltreated by a mass of people. A beggar, a simple old man, enters and sits him down on a stone. Children tease him. Now two missionaries appear; the people pester them and are about to even hang them, when they are arrested by the sound of a trumpet. Dimitri enters on horseback, followed by escorts; with dignity, he speaks to the people, sets free the boyard, the two priests, and, cheered by the crowd, goes his way. The old beggar, left alone, forbodes bitter suffering for the wretched people.

Scene 2.—Noblemen are plotting in the palace of the Kremlin. Boris, they are arrested by the sound of a trumpet. Dimitri enters on horseback, followed by escorts; with dignity, he speaks to the people, sets free the boyard, the two priests, and, cheered by the crowd, goes his way. The old beggar, left alone, forbodes bitter suffering for the wretched people.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. F. X. MAHONEY,
Boston Health Commissioner.

CEREBROSPINAL meningitis is a disease with which the average person is little familiar, but which is likely to make its appearance at any time, particularly in seaport cities where immigrants are received in any numbers.

Dr. Mahoney

In Boston the disease has made its appearance only intermittently, but it constitutes one of the greatest menaces confronting the health officials of this port.

Cerebrospinal meningitis is an acute, infectious, communicable disease. The organism is frequently present in the discharges from the mouths, noses, eyes and ears of patients suffering from the disease, and is thus transmitted from person to person.

Cerebrospinal meningitis occurs at all ages, but most frequently in children between the ages of one and ten years, and is very fatal. The organism is frequently, and probably as a rule, transmitted from the sick to the well by means of the discharges from the nose and throat. It has also been found in the noses and throats of healthy persons who have come in close contact with the sick or used towels or handkerchiefs soiled by them. Such persons, while not contracting the disease themselves, may transmit it to others.

Patients should be strictly quarantined until released by a physician of the health department. Those nursing or coming in close contact with the sick should take great care to disinfect their hands and persons. They should avoid close association with healthy persons, especially children.

All discharges from the nose and mouth of the sick should be most carefully disinfected, and all bed linen, towels, handkerchiefs, clothing, etc., should be boiled or soaked in a disinfecting solution. The dishes, forks, spoons, etc., of the patient should be reserved for his sole use. Rubber sheeting should be used over pillows to prevent their saturation with the discharges.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

The baby so afflicted sleeps with mouth open, snuffles, cannot breathe freely and cannot nurse properly.

At what age should a child be vaccinated?

Before teething begins if there is any smallpox in an infected house. Between the eruption of the teeth.

At about what age should a child be able to sit erect? J. A. C.

Usually between eight and nine months.

How can I tell the difference between heat exhaustion and sunstroke?

Heat a small piece of butter on a spoon, allowing it to melt, and when heated bring it to a brisk boil. Stirring all parts of the butter thoroughly. The oleo will boil with a noise and sputter without any foam, while butter will boil with but little noise and produces much foam.

Answering B. M. of Lowell, I would suggest that he write for taking treatment by mail order that she see a specialist in her own city.

RADIO "ETHER" CONTINUES TO BE POOR

Radio conditions continue poor. Code interference is light, although this may be due possibly to the fact that even code is blotted out by the unfavorable conditions.

Local 'phone harmonic in the 600 meter wave of WBK, the station of the United Fruit Company, caused interference on their broadcasting waves.

Code interference with broadcasting and its remedy is the subject of an article in the February issue of "The Marine News" by Charles J. Pannill, vice-president of the Independent Wireless Telegraph Co.

Mr. Pannill's suggestion is the assignment of the entire wave-band from 600 to 1,000 meters for ship and shore communication, leaving the band from 200 to 600 meters exclusively for broadcasting.

This would require a reassignment of the 500 and 512 meter waves allotted to ship radiophone, and the 900 meter wave used in compass work.

The suggestion is excellent, but Mr. Pannill does not fail to take a shot at the broadcast listener and his "grave at code interference unusually due, by the way, to the non-selectivity of amateur receiving equipment."

He also questions the theory that broadcastsite stations, being commercial enterprises, have any rights superior to the regular commercial stations handling traffic in code.

The blanketed condition of the atmosphere which has prevailed for the last three weeks has made it practically fruitless to look for any real good long distance reception. This condition has doubtless caused many listeners-in to think their sets are at fault.

PRESIDENT TO HEAR RECORD OF SPEECH

Washington, Feb. 7.—President Coolidge is to hear a reproduction of his voice taken 600 miles away from where he spoke.

It is the latest experiment in radio.

On the day he delivered his modernized message to congress, a specially perfected radio receiving set was installed in New York by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Attached to that machine was a "talking machine," set of the type ordinarily used by the phonograph corporations to record the voices of great musical stars.

President Coolidge's voice, thus received by radio from Washington, was recorded on a phonograph in New York City. The result was said to have been splendid. The records have been presented to the President who will hear them on a talking machine at the White House.

Radio Receiving Conditions Tonight

Receiving conditions in Boston and other New England cities should be nearly perfect tonight for all stations in the United States.

The unusual situation of an equal high pressure area extending all over the entire country makes this possible.

RADIO QUERIES

Does it make any difference if the two .005 condensers are interchanged with the one .002 condenser in my set? Yes. Such a large capacity across the phone circuit of detector would tend to choke the signals.

Does the number of turns on the secondary of the loose coupler may difference in its operation? C. J. T.

No, only that the number of turns govern the wavelength to which the set tunes. A small capacity condenser will require more turns than a large capacity. This is determined by an inductance and capacity formula.

How much does the detector tube affect the operation of the Super?

The proper action of the detector tube seems to approach nearer the action of a two-element tube. In other words, the detector tube under proper action acts as a rectifier only. If you have a superheterodyne, you might try using a crystal detector in place of the tube. Excellent results have been secured with the crystal.

Can I use parts for the Super Dick set without any change? E. A. C.

Yes. You can use them if you wish.

Will the Super Dick with two stages of audio added give the same results as the complete Super Dick? L.

Yes, the results will be the same.

I have a Grenee set and when I connect the B battery I get a good rushing sound. Can you try a system for set wiring. Is it correct? M. J. K.

Should say that your B battery was not in good condition. Better test it with a volt meter. Your set is wired as per diagram it is wrong in several of its connections. Check it over from a correct diagram.

Where can I obtain electrical varnish for coils?

Can anyone help this man out?

THIRTEEN CAUGHT IN RAID FACE TRIAL

Hartford, Ct., Feb. 7.—Thirteen patrons of the Farmington Coffee House, including two local high school teachers, together with John J. Curtin, alleged owner of the house, will be brought to trial in Farmington. They were arrested in a raid on the house in which a quantity of alleged beer was seized.

Unloading Trucks

Editor Boston American:

In regard to your editorial about loading trucks at side openings to diminish street congestion this very able business man don't appear to be familiar with the conditions in the South End. I am a teamster in the market district thirty years, and we do unload teams at the curb from the rail. Dressed beef we unload sideways to the curb, as he sags, but cannot always do so to load or unload a top-driven truck or a motor truck. Length-ways it would take up space enough for three teams or more, and besides not always is there room to get sideways. There may be just room enough to back up to the curb. It is those places we care that block the street so much. A person living in Somerville, Roxbury, Everett, Chelsea or Malden don't take the street car to come to the city; he uses the auto and leaves it by the curb for hours at a time.

What Should Be a Man's Object in Life?

Copyright, 1924, Star Co.

Sermons in stones are familiar, but few take the trouble to dig them out. Certainly none looks for sermons in an evening newspaper.

At the same time, will you kindly think over and answer the question that heads this column?

Here we are, marooned for a few days on a flying ball of earth. We don't know how we got here. We don't know where we are going. We are full of beautiful and satisfying FAITH. But we don't KNOW.

Into this Universe, and WHY not knowing,
Nor WHENCE, like Water, willy-nilly flowing;
And out of it as Wind along the Waste,
I know not WHITHER, willy-nilly blowing.

That's the way Omar, the old tentmaker, puts it.

We drift from dinner to the theatre, thence to bed, thence to breakfast, thence to work, and so on. Or, if in hard luck, we struggle and wail, "cursing our day," or more frequently cursing society.

We rarely stop to think what it is all about, or what we are here for.

We know the pig's object in life. It has been beautifully and permanently outlined in Carlyle's "pig catechism." The pig's life object is to get fat and keep fat—to get his full share of swill and as much more as he can manage to secure. And his life object is worthy. By sticking at it he develops fat hams inside his bristles, and WE know, though he does not, that the production of fat hams is his destiny.

But our human destiny is NOT to produce fat hams. Why do so many of us live earnestly on the pig basis? Why do we struggle savagely for money to buy our kind of swill—luxury, food, etc.—and cease all struggling when that money is obtained?

Is fear of poverty and dependence the only emotion that should move us?

Are we here merely to STAY here and EAT here?

A great German scientist, very learned and about as imaginative as a wart hog, declares that the human face is merely an extension and elaboration of the alimentary canal—that the beauty of expression, the marvelous qualities of a noble human face, are merely indirect results of the alimentary canal's strivings to satisfy its wants.

That is a hideous conception, is it not? But it is no more unworthy than the average human life, and the average existence has much to justify the German's speculations.

What SHALL we strive for? MONEY?

Get a thousand millions. Your day will come, and in due course the graveyard rat will gnaw as calmly at your bump of acquisitiveness as at the mean coat of the pauper.

Then shall we strive for POWER?

The names of the first great kings of the world are forgotten, and the names of all those whose power we envy will drift to forgetfulness soon. What does the most powerful man in the world amount to standing at the brink of Niagara, with his solar plexus trembling? What is his power compared with the force of the wind or the energy of one small wave sweeping along the shore?

The power which man can build up within himself, for himself, is nothing. Only the dull reasoning of gratified egotism can make it seem worth while.

Then what IS worth while? Let us look at some of the men who have come and gone, and whose lives inspire us. Take a few at random:

Columbus, Michael Angelo, Wilberforce, Shakespeare, Galileo, Fulton, Watt, Hargreaves—these will do.

Let us ask ourselves this question: "Was there any ONE THING that distinguished ALL their lives, that united all these men, active in fields so different?"

Yes. Every man among them, and every man whose life history is worth the telling, did something for THE GOOD OF OTHER MEN.

Hargreaves, the weaver, invented the spinning-jenny, and his invention clothes and employs hundreds of millions.

Galileo perfected the telescope, spread out before man's intellect the grandeur of the universe. Wilberforce helped to awaken man's conscience. He freed millions of slaves. Columbus gave a home to great nations. We thrive today because of his noble courage. Michael Angelo and Shakespeare stirred human genius to new efforts, and fed the human mind—a task more worthy than the feeding of the human stomach. We ride in Fulton's steamboats, and Watt's engine pulls us along.

Men who are truly great have DONE GOOD to their fellowmen. And the greatest Soul ever born on earth came to urge but one thing upon humanity, "LOVE ONE ANOTHER."

Get money if you can. Get power if you can. Then, if you want to be more than the ten thousand million unknown mingled in the dust beneath you, see what good you can do with your money and your power.

If you are one of the many millions who have not and cannot get money or power, see what good you can do without either.

You can help carry a load for an old man. You can encourage and help a poor devil trying to reform. You can set a good example to children. You can stick to the men with whom you work, fighting honestly for their welfare.

Time was when the ablest man would rather kill ten men than feed a thousand children. That time has gone. We do not care much about feeding the children, but we care less about killing the men. To that extent we have improved already.

The day will come when we shall prefer helping our neighbor to robbing him—legally—of a million dollars.

Do what good you can NOW, while it is unusual, and save the satisfaction of being a pioneer and an eccentric.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

WHY aren't most of us Successes? Mainly because we won't acknowledge that we're failures. The first step toward accomplishing a thing is to realize that you haven't accomplished it. You never go further if you think you have already reached the end of the goal.

Take Tom Higgins, for instance. Perhaps you remember Tom Higgins in his early twenties, long about the time he married. Bright, eager, popular, adored by his large family, engaged to marry The Only Girl—it surely looked as if Tom were going to get all the frosting on the cake. Then he got his first job, and at once that process started which has made Tom a failure instead of a success. Like most eager, bright, popular young men, Tom made mistakes. Lots of them. He was always rushing in where angels would take out accident policies, and coming out the worse for the deal. Which would have been very beneficial if he had faced facts, acknowledged his foolishness and profited by the experience. But he didn't. For every failure, Tom had an explanation. And the explanation always made Tom the hero of the story. Everything would have succeeded IF——. The "if" was always the other fellow's fault.

Of course his family believed those explanations. They even handed them to him ready made. He was surrounded by a Yes Chorus that sounded like a community choir. At first Tom leaned hard on their approval. He wasn't quite sure of his ground. But in a few years it didn't matter whether they approved or not. He was always Right. And being intelligent and well educated, he had made good in spite of himself. He had made a place for himself. But it wasn't the place he should have made. He might have been one of the Big Powers whereas he was merely a Small Noise, just about as popular with the folks who had to live with him. They were excellent theories. They showed grave consideration and the highest ideals. But unfortunately they had no practical application to the small devils resident in real kids, and the vicissitudes of a changing world. But the theories were fine, and Tom knew they were fine. So that settled it. No other theories were to be tolerated in his home.

But Tom didn't think he was merely a small noise. He regarded himself as a Coming Event of the first magnitude. He was tremendously in earnest about all that he did and said and thought. But he was also tremendously satisfied with all that he did and thought. When his acts didn't bear their proper fruitage of success, he would analyze them and argue over them. But he NEVER regretted them. If they had failed it wasn't his fault. Some other individual or the whole social scheme was to blame.

It was the same in his family as in his business. He prided himself on being a family man. Everything connected with his family life was of the utmost importance to him. He was as full of theories about child training as a porcupine is of spines, and the theories were Today Tom is a FAILURE. He is neither loved nor respected at home, nor a power in the business world. Sometimes, in very rare moments, he wonders WHY. Why has so unsatisfactory a fate been dealt to one whose intentions were so admirable? Then he reviews himself, and as he comes to each trait and determination that has helped to wreck his life he clasps it to his bosom and kisses it. He wouldn't part with one of them. That's why Tom isn't a success. Because, on analysis, he won't acknowledge that he's a failure.

Just Out of Hospital

Editor Helping Hand:

Could you send me the name of some one who could use a man's overcoat, size 38, young man's style? It would fit some one about 18 or 20 years old.

S. M. S.

Thank you. We have sent you the address of Mrs. D. McC., whose husband has just come out from a hospital and has no warm coat to protect him from the cold.

Clothing to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you give me the address of some one that would like to have something in the line of clothing. I would gladly give them.

MRS. O. A.

Thank you for your kind thought. As you didn't mention any sizes we are sending you the address of M. G., the oldest of seven children, as they could use practically anything.

Rug for Cold Floor

Editor Helping Hand:

Have you anyone on your list who needs covering to keep her floor warm? I have a nine by twelve tapestry Brussels rug for her. It needs a good sweeping but it is in fair condition. Whoever wants it will have to come or send for it, as I am not well and cannot attend to sending it off. Hope it will do much good.

MRS. A. K.

Thank you. We are sending you the address of Mrs. W. L. U. whose children have caught cold from being on cold, bare floors.

Lost All in Fire

Editor Helping Hand:

A man employed with my husband had the misfortune to have his home burn last week and lost all his furniture and clothing. He has a wife who has a little baby a week and a half old and also five other children. There are girls about 7 and 9 and a small girl 2, and two little boys about 4 and 6 years old and the small baby. If any reader has any kind of clothing that can be spared, and will let me know, I will gladly see that this family get it as everything they had was lost.

MRS. N. D. H.

Good for You, Girls!

Editor Helping Hand:

We would like to have the address of some needy mother who could use some clothes consisting of undershirtings, flannel petticoats, a muslin petticoat, dresses, hats and socks for a little girl, four or six years old, also some boys' suits size four years. We are a girls' club just organized.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE CURSE OF HOLDOVERS

By Dr. Frank Crane

A HOLD-OVER is a technical name for something we keep simply because we don't know how to get rid of it.

The Vermiform Appendix is a Hold-Over. Somewhere in the progress of Evolution it ceased functioning. Now all it does is to get sore.

We have no use for it, indeed it offends and threatens our life, mars our happiness and destroys our efficiency. But we don't know how to let go.

And yet Hold-Overs are an incident to growth. They mean that the ideas of one generation, although withered and worn out, are lapping over the ideas of the new.

Thus it becomes a delicate problem to get rid of them, for we cannot loose entirely from the past without destroying the principle of growth.

For instance, nations are a good thing. And they are also great enemies to progress, according to the law that the good is the enemy of the best. Nations are good if we keep in mind that they are but incidents of progress. They are bad if we look upon them as eventualities. The one eventuality is mankind.

In every man's secret mind his dream should be not to make the world Anglo-Saxon, but to make it human. Just now nationalism is perniciously exerting itself to interfere with that necessity for a normal and intelligent internationalism which is forcing itself upon us.

Another Hold-Over is Spiritism. Soothsaying, dream reading, table-rapping and all such things are reappearing.

This is one of the most ancient of characteristics. In former times sorcery, astrology and witchcraft were almost universally believed. Almanacs were published and greedily bought which abounded in absurd prognostications. The greatest minds were not free from those superstitions that we now usually associate with weakmindedness. And in one form or another this ancient mental dirt continues to be manifested in our thought.

Alcohol is another Hold-Over. For centuries the childish mind of the world was steeped in the delusion that the ecstasies of intoxication represented the fullness and beauty of life. Our history, our poetry, our literature of the past, is steeped in alcohol. It is going to take a generation or two of breeding to get it out of us.

The world of industry is cursed with the Hold-Over of competition. Not normal and wholesome competition, but competition in terms of conflict. The ranks of producers still draw themselves up in battle array, the managers on one side and the workmen on the other, and imagine that there can be some good result from fighting each other. How long before we shall outgrow this infantile frenzy?

Education is cursed with Hold-Over ideas. The children of democracy are still trained in schoolrooms that are little autocracies.

Our universities still devote their chief efforts to turning out specialists in every department of life except in life itself.

The two most important things for a child to learn are still classed as fads and luxuries. They are, first, that he should learn some kind of work to do for which the world is willing to pay him money.

The second is that he should learn how to govern himself and get along with his fellows.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE DESERT MOON

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"The moon is apparently a dead planet from all accounts. But, considering its close proximity to the earth and its slight difference of distance from the sun, why should it be a cold, icy planet any more than the earth?

I suppose that both planets get about an equal proportion of heat from the sun, unless that the moon is hidden behind the earth.—L. J. H., Jersey City."

YOUR question is one that has no doubt occurred to many others, though it is never discussed, so far as I have seen, in any astronomical books. It is quite natural to suppose that, both being at the same mean distance from the sun, the moon and earth should be in a similar state as to temperature.

They are quite surely composed of about the same kind of materials, although the moon's density is only three-fifths that of the earth. Yet the surface of the moon is apparently a desert waste, superficially scorched during the lunar day and fiercely cold during the lunar night. So far as habitability is concerned, there could hardly be a stronger contrast between two closely neighboring worlds than that which exists between the life-teeming earth and its "dead child"—the moon. And the statement that the moon is the earth's child is by no means a mere play of fancy, for it is based upon the very probable theory that the moon was formed from a portion of the substance, or body, of the earth separated off ages ago by the effects of tidal friction.

We come back, then, to the question why these two closely bound and genetically related globes, basking side by side in the sunbeams, differ so widely in their physical conditions. The basis of the answer is found in their great difference of size and mass. The moon has a diameter of only 2,163 miles while the earth's diameter is 7,918 miles. As a ball, the earth is therefore fortynine times larger than the moon.

You may wonder what this has to do with the temperature of the moon. You will see in a moment. The mass and size of the earth are such that the force of gravity on its surface is a certain amount, which we measure by the velocity which it imparts to a falling body in a second of time. Now, on the moon, with its smaller size and lesser mass, the force of gravity is only one-sixth as great as on the earth. And, in consequence of this relative feebleness of lunar gravity the moon has to go without any perceptible atmosphere. It never could have had an atmosphere comparable with the earth's because the molecules of the gases that constitute atmospheric air have so high a velocity of vibration that it would require a greater restraining force than the moon's gravity can exert to keep them permanently connected with the lunar globe. Lunar gravity cannot [illegible] velocity [illegible] and a half per second, but the molecules of hydrogen have a maximum velocity of 7.4 miles per second, those of nitrogen 1.8 miles per second, and those of water vapor 2.5 miles per second, so that, even if the moon had been provided with an atmosphere like the earth's to start with, it would have lost it by the gradual escape of the component gases.

If it had been endowed with oceans at the beginning the water would all have hurried away into space as fast as it evaporated, whereas on the earth, with a gravitative force six times stronger, all atmospheric gases, except free hydrogen, are held permanently, and the evaporation of the oceans simply forms clouds of water vapor which cannot get away, but being condensed fall again in the shape of rain.

The lack of sufficient force of gravity prevents the moon from having an atmosphere, and the lack of an atmosphere in turn prevents the moon from retaining the solar heat in the manner in which it is retained by the atmosphere of the earth. So, although the bare rocks of the moon almost blaze superficially in the unrestricted sunshine poured down upon them, yet they radiate away the heat into the airless space above them so rapidly that it cannot accumulate, and penetrate deep into the surface.

As soon as the shadow of lunar night descends the rocks become cold and the lunar night is so long that the cold must reach an intensity unknown anywhere on the earth.
